GENERAL STRIKE BEGINS: BOSTON VOTE TONIGHT

Today

Putting It Mildly
1,000,000 Jumpers
Who and Where Are They?
Darrow Speaks

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

San Francisco faces a dangerous strike that without energetic action on the part of those responsible might cut off food supplies from a city of 600,000 inhabitants.

Acting Governor Merriam of California puts it very mildly: "I don't believe any group of men, regardless of cause, are justified in depriving men, women and children of necessary sustenance, which, if continued, would result in epidemics."

Miss Perkins, secretary of labor, in constant touch by telephone with San Francisco, tells the President by radio to his battleship everything that happens. Public officials, unnamed, say "the federal government has no power to stop men from striking."

General strikes as a rule have not succeeded. British workers in the general strike of 1926 failed to paralyze the nation's business. The British strike of coal miners was more successful. It lasted seven months. The British coal industry has been in collapse and the majority of British coal miners have been on the dole ever since.

You can do things, when you control a country absolutely as Stalin controls Russia, with all money, earned by everybody, spent to carry out government plans.

Having trained millions of young men and women in aerodynamics, as preparation for flying, the Russian government plans to train one million parachute jumpers, not ten thousand or a hundred thousand, but one million by the end of this year.

Russia does things in a big way.

Savitzky, Russian expert, has produced a better parachute that will be put into "mass production."

Russia's champion parachute jumper, a young woman named Salvina, is employed recruiting "jumpers," giving exhibitions all over the country.

Russia knows what the airplane will mean in the next war. Our highly respected country seems not to know much about that yet, but will know if war comes our way.

Clarence Darrow, most successful criminal lawyer, says NRA is led by amateurs that do not understand political economy.

Who DOES understand political economy?

Who ARE those men in this country? Mr. Darrow should name them.

Mr. Darrow also says the men around President Roosevelt "are not men of wide reading." This will startle Professors Moley, Tugwell, and other administration highbrows who thought they had read everything from early Cuneiform inscriptions to Einstein's relativity theory and the structure of the atom.

A brain testing machine invented by a Russian scientist, Peter Lazarev, says man's mind is at its best between eleven a. m. and one p. m., at its dullest and worst between one and three o'clock in the morning.

The powers of "reception and sensation" are keenest in man and woman between the ages of twenty-five and thirty-two.

Most important is the announcement that mothers reach the highest point of their intelligence during the first four months of an unborn baby's existence. That explains intellectual progress. Each baby gets the best possible start from the

Ayer Club Owner in Court

HOTEL UNDER PROBE IN RUM WAR

Mrs. Richards Pleads Not Guilty; Boston Names on List

Ayer, July 16—A complaint charging that the Club Woodstock, which students of exclusive Groton school visited, was operated as a place of amusement without a town or state license, was issued today in district court against Mrs. Rena Richards, the proprietor.

The complaint was the opening gun in the campaign by the board of selectmen to close up three of the town's most popular drinking spots. Corp. Robert Thompson of the State Police, who made a three months' investigation as requested by the selectmen, obtained the complaint.

HEARING JULY 25

Mrs. Richards appeared at the preliminary hearing and when the complaint was issued she pleaded not guilty and obtained a continuance to July 25.

Meantime, Town Counsel George L. Wilson prepared a list of witnesses who will appear tomorrow night at meeting of the selectmen, when revocation of Mrs. Richards' license and that of Hotel Lincoln will be sought.

State troopers, alcoholic beverage inspectors, and other persons will appear and the report of the police will be offered and possibly made public.

Evidence of violations of other than the liquor laws are included in the report, it was learned.

Atty. Wilson said today:

"We are not compelled to grant a hearing in such a case, but we simply want to prove that we are not treating these license holders unjustly."

Gen. Daniel Needham, commissioner of public safety, is studying a copy of a report on the "Ayer cases," which he requested several days ago as the result of information that the investigation had been hampered and delayed by political pressure.

BOSTONIANS ON LIST

Mrs. Richards will be given a chance to defend the conduct of the club at the selectmen's meeting, and it is understood will appeal to the State Alcoholic Beverage Commission if unfavorable action against her is taken.

It was revealed Attorney Wilson has another state police report dealing with several local places and including the names of Bostonians who visited Mrs. Richards' club. Her fight against revocation may result in disclosure of these names.

Report Spreads That Grandmother Will Get Demand

By International News Service

Hartsdale, N. Y., July 16—The assignment of department of justice agents to an out-of-town destination today caused a report to be circulated that the purported kidnapers of 21-months-old Robert Connor were attempting to contact Mrs. Richard H. Murphy, grandmother of the missing baby in Bridgeport, Conn.

By Associated Press

Hartsdale, N. Y., July 16—Search for Bobby Connor, after a week-end devoid of developments, continued in its fourth day today on two tacks.

One was renewed plan for an organized hunt through the thickets and woods surrounding the Hartsdale Manor home where the 21 month old boy disappeared, late Thursday afternoon.

The other was a far flung net by radio and police wire descriptions for a peculiar pedlar missing since about the time the child disappeared.

The search for the pedlar brought in another suspect today. Daniel Dyckes, 37, a Negro, wheeling a baby carriage, filled with adult clothing in Dobbs Ferry, was held for questioning. He said be was taking home washing, but appeared frightened and Federal agents sent his fingerprints to Washington for a check up.

JUDGE TO HEAR NORMA PLEA

Motions for new trials for Norma Brighton Millen and Abe Faber will be argued tomorrow before Judge Nelson P. Brown in Dedham Superior Court. Similar motions for the Millen brothers, who, with Faber, were convicted of first degree murder in the Needham bank robbery, have not yet been filed by their attorney, George Stanley Harvey.

Atty. George A. Douglas will argue the motion for Norma, convicted as an accessory after the murder, and Atty. William R. Scharton will represent Faber. Both motions are based on the plea that the verdicts were against the weight of evidence.

District-Attorney Edmund R. Dewing will oppose the motions, having cut short his vacation to appear at the court session.

KAYE DON GETS JAIL TERM

By Associated Press

Douglas, Isle of Man, July 16—Kaye Don, noted auto racing driver, was sentenced to four months' imprisonment today, following his conviction of manslaughter in the death of his mechanic in a wreck, May 28. The sentence will be served in the new Douglas prison.

Francis Tayler, the mechanic, was killed instantly on a night practice run for a local race, when the automobile catapulted off the highway on a bad turn. Don himself was seriously injured.

The automobile and speed boat racer was convicted Saturday night. Immediately upon sentence today, Don's attorney filed notice of appeal.

As soon as the sentence was passed Don was arrested. His attorney scurried about attempting to arrange bail, which would permit Don liberty to return to England while the appeal is pending.

Strike Plight of 1,300,000 Told in Terse Sentences

By International News Service

San Francisco, July 16—Highlights of the general strike in San Francisco and East Bay cities follow:

ON STRIKE: 75,000 members of 177 unions in San Francisco; 15,000 members of 28 unions in Oakland and other East Bay cities; 32,000 members of 79 additional unions in Oakland will join the general strike tomorrow.

FOOD: No fresh meat available. Supplies of corned beef, ham, bacon and other cured meats practically bought out by housewives fearful of famine. All available supplies of vegetables and fruit exhausted. Potatoes, sugar, flour and other staples rationed by grocers—five pounds to each purchaser. Canned food supply rapidly diminishing from grocery store shelves.

RESTAURANTS: The strike executive committee licensed 19 restaurants, located in key sections of San Francisco, to remain open.

TELEPHONE, LIGHT, WATER AND GAS: Service will be maintained.

TRANSPORTATION: Taxicabs tied up. All street railways tied up.

CIGARETTES and TOBACCO—Stores, unable to replenish supplies, selling only one package of cigarettes or one tin of tobacco to each customer.

FUNERALS—Strike executive committee issuing special permits for union hack drivers and hearse drivers.

GASOLINE—Only three service stations open in the city. These stations—the only cases—are selling gasoline only to doctors and police cars. Motorists have garaged their cars for the duration of the strike.

BAER DECLINES FALL FIGHT

WALKOUT PARALYZES PACIFIC CITIES

(Other San Francisco strike news on Page 3.)

Boston longshoremen will take a strike vote tonight at a mass meeting in Faneuil Hall to determine whether the local council, with 2000 members, will walk out in sympathy with the strikers in San Francisco. Daniel J. Donovan, president of the Boston Council, made this announcement today upon his return from New York where he attended a conference of eastern delegates.

General Strike Havoc

By the Associated Press

The "siege of San Francisco"—A general strike intended by union labor to paralyze the entire metropolitan area of 1,300,000 persons—was ordered begun at 8 a. m. (noon Eastern daylight time) today.

The strike, involving an estimated 100,000 organized workmen, is aimed to assist 27,000 Pacific Coast longshoremen and marine workers on strike for two months seeking changed working conditions.

Four thousand national guardsmen on guard, 2000 additional men having been ordered out last night. Reports, neither confirmed nor denied, are that the federal government is increasing its armed forces in the area.

San Francisco, July 16—San Francisco felt the paralysis of its mass labor strike today when all utility transportation ceased.

As fear of hunger and violence gripped the hearts of 1,300,000 residents of the San Francisco Bay area, all municipal street cars followed other cars and taxis into idleness. Those who went to work despite the 8 o'clock walkout of most labor unions walked or thumbed rides in the few remaining automobiles.

Unprecendented numbers of police patrolled the city in pairs as 2000 more national guardsmen were moved quietly from their summer encampment at San Luis Obispo to reinforce the 2000 already protecting San Francisco's waterfront where the general strike was bo

He said: "Conditions such as these frequently breed tumult, riots, law infractions and disorder."

Chief of Police William J. Quinn thought the first 2,000 guardsmen could not handle the situation.

A mob storming a grocery store which it shouted was profiteering lent strength to his forebodings and indicated the citizens feel their families will go hungry.

Similar anxiety gripped Portland, Ore., as a strike committee worked on plans for a mass walkout Wednesday if steamship companies refuse to arbitrate demands of striking maritime workers. Portland housewives duplicated scenes of San Francisco last week moving groceries in surprising quantities from store shelves to pantry larders. Virtually exhausted, gasoline was doled out to a restricted list.

San Fancisco, and the east bay cities where a general strike will become effective tomorrow, were already without gasoline except for doctors, police and firemen. Frensh vegetables and meats were virtually unobtainabie.

All San Francisco restaurants had closed except 19 designated by the union's general strike committee. The committee organized its own police force of strikers and outlined a program to control necessities with supply depots to ration food.

Automobiles were left in garages. All street car lines had stopped operating. In the fact of threats they would loe all civil service bentfits, Municipal carmen ran their trams into barns this morning.

Husky men stopped lone pedestrians and cautioned them: "If you're thinking of going to work, better not." Police kept loiterers on the move.

"PEOPLE SHALL NOT STARVE"

Federal, state city and union officials promised San Francisco would not starve, despite the blockade that has kept food in loaded warehouses from reaching homes, and stopped farm produce on highways miles from the city.

Theaters, amusements places and small shops were closed. Department stores did not know how long they would be open, milk and bread alone were delivered. Private citizens with automobiles loaded with food were apt to be stopped and have their supplies scattered on the streets.

Generally a strange quiet, which amused some and frightened others to the verge of hysteria, hung over the city as unusual precautions were taken to insure order.

So quietly did Governor Merriam order in the 2000 extra national guardsmen that Mayor Rossi himself apparently was not aware of it, for his telegram was sent when they were nearly here. Morning newspapers made no mention of their arrival for fear of whipping alarm into panic.

Mobilization of a thousand more soldiers in Los Angeles indicated preparations to send possibly the full strength of California's Guard into the strike-strangled city.

Guardsmen have been restricted to the waterfront, birthplace of the steadily increasing walkouts, but the Governor has repeatedly said he will extend them over the entire city at a word from Mayor Rossi.

Chief Quinn began mobilization of war-time veterans to augment 200 special officers. Every member of the regular force was on duty. Oakland put on 100 additional police and several hundred special deputy sheriffs. Mayor Rossi appointed an emergency committee of 500 citizens to plan distribution of necessities.

The carmen's union, whose 4800 members, all employes of the Market Street Railway, urged the ctiy to run its cars into the barns to prevent violence. E. G. Cahill, manager of the utilities, said the cars will run.

Mayor Rossi, who declared the strike is the "greatest disaster that has fallen upon the Golden Gate city since the earthquake and fire of 1906," proclaimed that the emergency required enlargement of the existing functions of government.

The state's National Guard force which could be pressed into service numbers about 6000 men, guard officers said.

About 300 thoroughly trained federal troops are stationed at the San Francisco Presidio, but their officers said they had received no instructions concerning possible action.

Federal Chief Plans To Prevent Famine

In the first outbreak resembling a food riot, a crowd of 400, angered by reports of profiteering, broke into a grocery store, seized the staples in stock, and smashed show windows and fixtures.

Federal aid to insure against hunger was promised by Robert Hinckley, investigator for Harry Hopkins, national relief administrator. But he added:

"The strike situation may result in San Francisco facing greater distress than the city had as a result of the 1906 fire and earthquake."

Secretary of Labor Perkins was reported keeping in constant touch with the situation from Washington and in turn reporting to President Roosevelt, who is on his way to Hawaii.

Declaring that he could not understand "why this situation should last 24 hours longer," General Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, said in Portland he plans to come to San Francisco to lend his aid in peace efforts.

A charge that the "overwhelming" cause of the strike was an attack by the employers' group upon labor's right to organize was made by Edward D. Vandeleur president of the San Francisco Central Labor Council, in a statement to Mayor Rossi. The statement also was signed by George G. Kidwell, of the central strike committee, a conservative leader who had opposed the walkout. The statement said:

"They (the employers) have endeavored to use their own new huge unified power (under the NRA), to destroy the labor organization. It is in defense against this catastrophe that the substantial and responsible labor unions of America have been forced to take action."

In another statement, Vandeleur, who is also chairman of the central strike committee, declared the San Francisco Industrial Association was placing 750 "strike-breaking" trucks with armed guards in service to move freight from warehouses and docks.

He declared: "It is also a reported plan of the association to spread panic and terror throughout the city by calling upon the governor to declare martial law to protect their activities."

Light and power for the strike locked metropolitan area, approximately the size of the state of Rhode Island, was assured when the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers voted not to walk out. Union spokesmen said the action was taken "in appreciation of the sympathy of the public of San Francisco on behalf of the strikers of the city."

Milk and bread deliveries continued under sanction of the general strike committee.

The city's newspapers, though showing a sharp curtailment of advertising, will not be interrupted, it was indicated after the typographical union accepted a new wage agreement.

The immediate three-point program announced by the strikers' committee for conducting necessary functions was:

"To ration the city as to food and gasoline and designate the restaurants where the public may eat with union sanction; to establish the special 'labor police force,' and to bring all non-union workers, estimated at 50,000, into the organized labor fold."

In the East Bay cities, the general walkout was scheduled to be completed by 8 a. m. tomorrow. Twelve hundred street car operators and bus drivers in those areas voted to join in the strike. This will tie up the Key Route ferry-boats, operated by the traction company. Southern Pacific ferry-boats will continue to run, it was indicated, as the crews come under the jurisdiction of the Railway Labor Board.

San Francisco department stores announced they plan to open, but that a conference will be held by executives late today to determine whether they will remain in operation.

Amusements for the people, who, as gasoline became exhausted, walked the strangely hushed streets instead of riding, were curtailed when all motion picture theaters closed after last night's performances, when the film projectionists, stage hands and musicians walked out.

Food Growers' Threat Adds to Food Crisis

Wholesale dealers estimated more than $10,000,000 worth of staple food supplies are in storage, but the teamsters' strike blocked distribution. Stocks in retail stores dwindled away before the steady stream of housewives seeking to safeguard their families against hunger.

The food blockade extended far into the rural districts where trucks had been held back by the iron ring of strike pickets.

Acting Governor Merriam announced national guardsmen will bring the produce trucks through the picket lines if other means fail.

Machine gun convoys, composed of deputy sheriffs, highway patrolmen and special officers, meanwhile took up the duty of clearing the way for the truck caravans.

Threatened strikes of agricultural workers in sympathy with the city unions loomed. At Salinas, 750 members of the Vegetable Packers' Association, composed of field and packing house workers, announced a unanimous "sympathy vote."

In their statement to Mayor Rossi, outlining the union's contentions, Vandeleur and Kidwell concluded:

"The unino men, like other citizens, seek to protect their system. They merely happen now to be in the front lines and, buffeted by the full force of an un-American attack upon the American principles of organization and collective bargaining, they plead for your support."

Here Is Food Plight San Francisco Faces Today

By the Associated Press

The food situation in the San Francisco metropolitan area was estimated to be about as follows:

There is ittle fresh meat, and the supply is rapidly becoming exhausted. Smoked meats, hams and bacons—which housewives have been buying heavily because such meats keep well—are about gone.

The larger hotels, which have facilities for food storage, insist that they will be able to feed "regular guests." Patrons of smaller hostelries in some instances have filled closets in their rooms with canned foods to meet the eventualities of the "Siege."

Fresh meats and other necessary foodstuffs will be supplied hospitals by special dispensation of the general strike committee.

Hundreds of restaurants already have closed. Others say they will have to.

BRITAIN RALLIED CITIZENS TO BREAK STRIKE IN 1926

Walkout Collapsed After Speech by Sir John Simons, Features of Which Are Now English Law

By Universal Service

London, July 16—The impending general strike in San Francisco, threatening to tie up all large cities on the Pacific coast, recalled to Americans in Britain the measures taken by the government and the public at the time of the great strike here in 1926. The strike movement collapsed because of the weight of public opinion.

Sir John Simon

Directly the general strike was declared, the British government appointed Winston Churchill, then Chancellor of the Exchequer, as head of the forces to fight the strike. When newspapers were forced to close, Churchill organized a newspaper giving the government version of the news.

The strike has been started against the orders of the government, and consequently the government organized itself to battle the strike. The army was mobilized on a war emergency basis. Leaves were stopped but reserves were not called out. A special constabulary, which during the war aided and relieved police, was recalled and remobilized.

CITIZENS MOBILIZED

Citizens corps were then formed for various duties. Men, women and student bodies volunteered for service. Food supplies were organized for distribution. A special volunteer transport corps, including women truck drivers, was augmented by army and navy transport units.

The vast expanse of Hyde Park, now a Communist and Socialist meeeting place, was taken over as a base for the transport corps. Everyone capable of driving an automobile was asked to enlist. All transport means were thoroughly organized and there was no food shortage in any part of the country.

Men from the vounteer corps were trained to drive subways and trolley cars, and also to operate a skeleton railway service throughout the country. Volunteers drove buses and trolleys with armed police as guards.

PLEASURE CARS HALTED

People pledged on their honor not to use automobiles for pleasure purposes, and this was faithfully carried out. Car owners used their cars for duties requested by police, transported workers not striking, and helped with other necessary transport. All were guarded by soldiers or police.

Food was convoyed under military guards, some armed with machine guns. Naval men were placed in charge of power stations.

An injunction was granted to restrain officials of the Sailors' and Firemen's Union from calling a strike without the full membership balloting, and meanwhile, the volunteer corps mastered the intricacies of transportation.

FOOD WAS CENTERED

Food centers were divided into three classifications and food was dispensed from three separate points. The classifications were: (A) milk, eggs, etc.; (B) vegetables, and fruits, and (C) meat.

All food in transit was concentrated by authorities and distributed at cost. All monetary disputes were settled by government authority.

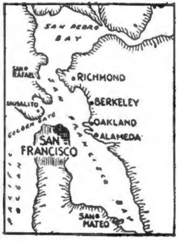
Finally the strikers realized the hopelessness of their cause. But the thing which gave the strike a body blow was the speech of Sir John Simon in the House of Commons, declaring the strike illegal.

Sir John issued a warning that every railway man, for instance, who joined the strike in defiance of his contract was liable to be sued in the county courts. Every trade union leader who incited the worker to strike, Sir John said, was liable for damages "to the uttermost farthing of his personal possessions."

Sir John's contentions have since become the law in England.

The coal strike which preceded the general strike, lasted for seven months and came to a disastrous end.

In Strike's Grip



This map explains the large waterfront of San Francisco, which is bounded by water on three sides. It also gives the relative position of Oakland and adjoining cities of the California metropolis. Strikers are endeavoring to bar all roads leading into the city.

ON OTHER STRIKE FRONTS

Hatters' Strike Ends

Danbury, Conn., July 16 (INS)—Hatters' fur workers, on strike for nine weeks, returned to work this morning at five factories here. Conferences between workers, factory officials and members of the New York regional labor board Sunday resulted in a decision by manufacturers to recognize the union. More than 1000 workmen were on strike.

Truckers to Strike

Minneapolis, Minn., July 16 (AP)—Peacemakers sought to save Minneapolis from another truck drivers' strike today as the walkout hour—midnight—approached with scant signs of an agreement. Governor Olson and E. H. Dunnigan, federal conciliator, awaited action from employers and drivers on a plan for settlement after conferences Sunday. The strike leaders, claiming a "victory" in apparently removing a threat of revolt within the union ranks Sunday, made final plans for the walkout of 4000.

Three Dead in Strike

Houston, Tex., July 16 (AP)—The roar of gunfire on the waterfront, leaving three men dead and three wounded, created a tense situation today in dock labor troubles. The outbreak occurred as 20 Negro independent longshoremen were riding to work. An auto drew alongside and pistols and shot guns poured a stream of lead into a truck and a motor car occupied by the Negroes.

Textile Strike Looms

Birmingham, Ala., July 16 (INS)—A textile strike embracing 36 states, threatened the nation today. Following announcement that representatives of 22,000 textile workers in Alabama had voted to strike, John Dean, international representative of the Textile Workers, revealed that the strike might spread to all textile states.

A Lesson From England Where General Strike Is Considered Revolution

FELLOW CITIZENS:

Your attention is called to the story of the English general strike as it appears in another column of this edition of the Boston Evening American.

Its similarity to the situation in San Francisco today is definite and complete.

In England the general strike was considered a revolution.

It was rebellion against constituted authority—and against the whole non-combatant population of the nation—some millions of men, women and children, innocent of even the remotest connection with the questions in issue, were threatened with the horrors of starvation and epidemic.

But England rose to the occasion.

The government, recognizing the "walk-out" for what it actually was—revolution—organized all of the forces of its several communities to supply the people with food and other necessities—and, in addition to that, the citizens of each community—men, women and student bodies—were formed for other important duties.

Food was convoyed under military guards. It was concentrated by authorities and distributed at cost.

SIR JOHN SIMON, the Liberal leader, rising in the House of Commons, voiced the determination of the people of England to "carry on" and he said:

"This proclamation of a general strike is, from the viewpoint of future trade unionism, a tragic situation . . . the day will come when an irritated, resentful and suffering public opinion will proclaim that we ought to make an immense invasion and inroad on the rights of organized labor. The people responsible for creating this situation are the very people whose duty it was, at all costs, to have told the working classes that a general strike was a different thing from an ordinary strike.

"The labor leaders are abusing the power the community gave them. Unless they are careful, there may be a terrible reaction. Should that reaction come, it will be the duty of Liberals to preserve and secure the legal rights of organized labor.

"I beg the labor leaders to realize that they too have this responsibility . . . they have committed hundreds of thousands of workmen to a course which must end in failure and which has set back, maybe for centuries, the useful and peaceful progress of the working classes of the country.

"A general strike is not a strike at all. Men have the right to strike but they must give due notice to their employers to terminate their engagements."

Sir John Simon's view has since then become the law of England.

CALIFORNIA is a fair state. Its people have been happy, reasonably prosperous in comparison with other regions. They have innumerable other advantages than those enjoyed by populations less blessed than we.

But if the Communists, starting with their control of the longshore and maritime unions, extend their power over the community of the bay area—and thence into the whole, or even part of the state—California would be no more fit to live in than Russia.

For many years there has been wise and honest leadership of trade unions in San Francisco.

There are many thousands of honest, upright, God-fearing, hard-working union men now part of the so-called general strike.

The total of these against the handful of Communistic radicals, who have gotten them into this mess, is so overwhelming as to make us wonder how they have permitted themselves to be led from wise leadership into this revolt against their very selves.

It seems incredible that they may not realize the distance to which they are carrying themselves and the best aims of unionism along the path towards destruction.

Communists—an amazingly small number of them—but an amazingly skillful number of them—are in the saddle today.

The State of California—her constituent cities—have a duty to themselves which is patent to all.

California must be kept a decent place to live in.

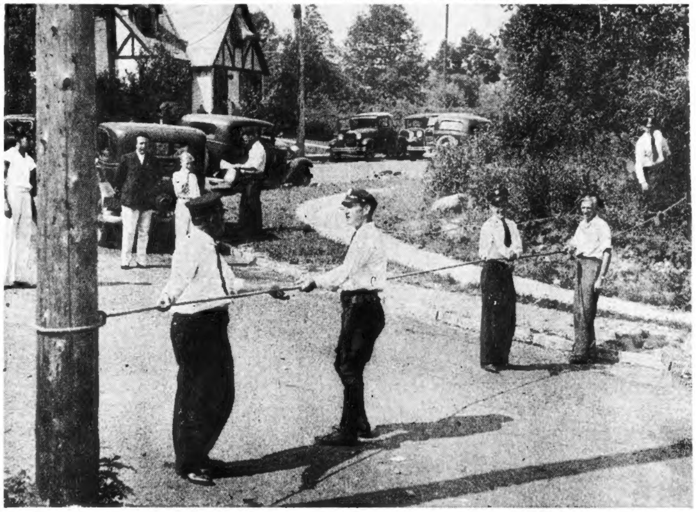
All esources of the Empire State have been placed by Governor Herbert H. Lehman at the disposal of Charles H. Connor, New York state insurance commissioner, in the hunt for his 21-month-old son, Bobby, now believed to have been kidnaped. The New York governor is shown here on a surprise arrival at Hartsdale Manor, N. Y., to inspect he suroundings in the vicinity of the Conno home. Mrs. Lehman is just getting out of the car. (Picture from International News Service.



So great were the swarms of curious who flocked yesterday to the Hartsdale Manor section in Westchester County, N. Y., from which Bobby Connor, 21 months old, vanished last Thursday, that police set up a rope-barrier to save the grieving family from annoyance. Directly behind this heavy line being strung across the right of way, the Connor home, at 25 Holmes avenue, may be seen, with police cars in the enclosed area. Since Bobby's strange disappearance four days ago, not a clue of any value has been unearthed. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

pedlar of West 30th street, Manhattan, was questioned but satisfied police he was not in Hartsdale on Thursday.

Fire state police wires carried early today new, more detailed descriptions of Bobby and of the pedlar, despite the statement of the boy's father, Charles H. Connor, that the eccentric was picked up by police Friday night and absolved.

Descriptions of him were being broadcast by a Newark radio station.

The father revealed his belief Bobby had been picked up by a child hunger woman who would return him when she realized what she had done and when the police alarms die down.

Governor and Mrs. Herbert H. Lehman drove over from their home in Purchase yesterday to call on the parents and offer every state aid in the search. Mr. and Mrs. Connor were spending the day with Frank A. Saporito, Mount Vernon criminal lawyer.

LOODHOUNDS USED

It was suggested today that Gov. Lehman could request federal relief officials to send several hundred CCC boys here to cut down the almost impenetrable thickets and facilitate a foot-by-foot search the terrain.

Axes would be used to the inwined brambles and sickles on the tall grass which the conservation camp men would toss behind them as they moved close together through the brush and wools.

Bloodhounds figured in thhe new search of the ground. Before it rained last night Greenburgh police asked state troopers to locate rained dogs, thinking sufficient cent might remain. Four were rought from New Jersey today to be used in spite of the rain.

Firemen and volunteers attached to stations at Hartsdale, White Plains, Ardsley have been askd to be ready for a new systematic combing in the vicinity by 1000 men led by police if decided upon.

PROSECUTOR ON SCENE

Mr. Sarporito today denied he had been called into the case as an intermediary by kidnapers of the child. He said he had known the Connors for ten years and wanted to provide them with a day of rest.

He said the case had none of the earmarks of the usual kidnaping case and that he believed the child had been taken by a childless mother or a maniac, now afraid to return it because of police activity.

Coyne took his first action in the District Attorney Frank H. case by coming to the scene "to check all angles." No one is under arrest on state charges in the case and Mr. Coyne wouldn not elaborate on what brought him into the investigation.

Grandmother Fears Bobby Is Auto Victim

Bridgeport, Conn., July 16—Mrs. Richard H. Murphy of this city, grandmother of missing Bobby Connor of Hartsdale, N. Y., disagreed with the authorities regarding the 21-months-old child's fate. She believes her grandson to be a hit-run motor car victim or lost, but not kidnaped.

"I don't see why anyone would want to kidnap Bobby," she said. "We have no money for ransom. We are not wealthy."

Mrs. Murphy continued to give a mother's care to the three other children in the family, Claire, 9; Richard, 7, and Joan, 4.

For the first time since Bobby has been missing, the Murphys dropped the seclusion with which they had surrounded the children and permitted them to be photographed in the hope that public interest in this way might be aroused, aiding the search.

Claire is the only one of the three Connor children who knows that their brother has disappeared, it was said.

"Please help find my little brother," she asked newspapermen.

Mrs. Murphy said the children will stay with her until "something definite develops."

"While the children are here," she said, "they are out of their mother's way, and heaven knows, she has plenty to worry about."

M'GRADY ACTS TO END STRIKE

By Associated Press.

Washington, July 16—Secretary Perkins declined again today to comment on the San Francisco strike.

The Labor Department head continued, however, to keep in close touch with developments by long-distance telephone talks with Edward McGrady, Assistant Secretary and a member of the Longshoremen's Labor Board. Miss Perkins was said by department officials to be hopeful the board would be able to work out a settlement.

William Green and other high officials of the American Federation of Labor were out of town.

Shooting Starts Hunt for Dillinger in Chicago

By Associated Press

Chicago, July 16—John Dillinger and his henchmen were hunted again today in the Chicago area. The ruthlessness of an attack on two policemen, shot on sight, gave rise to reports that it was the work of the Indiana desperado or his followers.

DILLINGER

Sergeant Harry Bingham, head of the Dillinger detail, disclosed that for three days his men have been at work on reports that the mobsters were hiding here.

The victims were State highway policemen, cut down without warning last night, one perhaps fatally, when they offered their assistance innocently to four men and a woman they believed to be in trouble.

They came upon three cars northwest of Chicago. Beside the cars stood four men and a woman.

"Anything we can do to help you?" asked Policeman Fred McAllister, alighting with Policeman Gilbert Cross.

The answer was a crack of pistols. Cross collapsed, a bullet in his abdomen, another in his chest and a third splintering his elbow. With a bullet through his shoulder, McAllister fell, rolled into a ditch for safety, and emptied his revolver at the three cars which sped away.

The Detective Bureau had been requested by the United States Department of Justice to watch for two automobiles equipped with Maine license plates, its occupants suspected of having robbed a bank in that state.

Protest Brings 'Bath' for Lake

Protest from thousands of bathers in Lake Quannapowitt, Wakefield, on the green scum covering parts of the pond, brought chemical treatment for the water today by employes of the Wakefield water department.

Bags containing copper sulphate were attached to the sides of a power boat and then were driven back and forth through the affected areas. The treatment will, within a few days, be repeated, and is expected completely to rid the pond of the growth.

Gibson's Nephew Killed

YD CHILDREN JOIN PARADE

Fort Devens, July 16—Children stole the show nere as 40,000 men, women and youngsters crowded the parade grounds for the seventh annual YD day in honor of the war-time veterans of the division.

The children were the sons and daughters of the YD fighting men, who went overseas in '17. Stepping smartly to martial tunes, they marched with their dads in turnout, which marked the visit of the older YD men to the camp and were cheered to the echo.

The parade of the soldiers of '17 and '18, veterans of Chateau Thierry and the Argonne, led by Brigadier General Charles H. Cole, preceded the big event of the day, the review of the present-day active Yankee Division, in which 6100 officers and men marched.

Motorist Saves Woman in River

Mrs. Ruth Massee Barteau, 30, of South Acton, is still alive today despite her second attempt at suicide, according to police. The woman was rescued from drowning by an unknown automobilist who dived, fully clothed, into the Charles River Basin from the Cambridge end of the Longfellow bridge, after he saw her leap into the waters.

PLANE CRASHES KILL SEVEN

By the Associated Press

Airplane disasters killed seven persons yesterday.

An aerial vacation of three Lincoln, Neb., men—D. H. Campbell and Alva H. Andrews, insurance executives, and Dr. F. W. Ryman, a dentist—ended in a crash near Glasgow, Mont. All were killed. James Erickson, 46, a Montana rancher flying with them, was a fourth victim. Dr. Ryman was pilot.

Allen Walker and Eugene Foertner, both of Kirkwood, Mo., died in the blazing wreckage of a plane that fell in taking off for a flight over St. Louis. The pilot, Jack Steuby, was injured.

Gail Klinefelter, 18-year-old pilot, fell to his death near Baltimore in a small plane he had helped rebuild.

Milford's Murray Asks Nomination

Pehr G. Holmes, Republican, is now congressman from that district. Mr. and Mrs. Murray leave today for a European trip.

London-Moscow Will Swap Envoys

Moscow, July 16 (INS)—For the first time in Soviet-British relations, military and aviation attaches will be accredited to the respective embassies at London and Moscow, it was learned today. The agreement was made in an exchange of letters between Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet Foreign Minister, and Lord Chilston, the British Ambassador.

Rich Pratt Family Foils Kidnapers by Patrol

By International News Service

Glen Cove, L. I., July 16—So real has become the threat of kidnaping that the wealthy Pratt family, whose members dwell on 12 connecting estates totaling 2300 acres near here, have found it necessary to buy a radio-equipped police car for their own private use.

They are the first family in the country to employ such extreme measures for protection against kidnapers.

The car will be operated by Leonard Remsen, sworn in as a special officer by the Nassau county police department and paid by the Pratts.

Remsen's only duty will be to patrol the acreage occupied by the family. Arrangements have been made so that the many private roads, which wind through the acres, can be closed immediately if any suspicious person is sighted.

Mrs. Ruth Pratt, former Congresswoman, is a member of the family.

VANCOUVER BAN ON U. S. SHIPS

By Associated Press

Vancouver, July 16—Vancouver longshoremen voted by a wide majority today to refuse to handle any United States ships coming into this port manned by "unfair" crews.

The longshoremen will obtain full details from the northwest strike committee at Seattle of United States ships to be placed on the "unfair" list and no work will be done on these ships. The decision followed the stand taken by Longshoremen when they refused to handle any cargo loaded by strike-breakers at United States ports. In this, the Shipping Federation of British Columbia agreed.

Some time ago, non-union stevedores were taken off the steamer Kingsley by union men. The non-union men were employed to unload the Kingsley's cargo after the unions had refused to permit the handling of freight.

Labor Here Eyes Strike as Canned Goods Dwindle

While members of the Longshoremen's Union in Boston today awaited the arrival of Daniel J. Donovan, president of the Boston council, to determine what action will be taken on the East Coast as a result of the strike at San Francisco, all of New England faced an acute shortage of canned goods because of the labor troubles.

It was reported at New York this morning that less than a week's supply of salmon, prunes, pears and peaches is available in the warehouses.

Jobbers prices are reported by the importers to have risen from 2½ to 5 cents per dozen cans, and one large firm is reported to be accepting orders only from regular customers.

No shipments have been sent out from Portland or Seattle since May 9. Shipments from San Francisco have been irregular since the inception of the strike.

Donovan left Boston last week to attend a conference in New York. The parley was called in the metropolis after all attempts to settle the strike on the Pacific Coast had failed.

It is said that officials of the national union have stated unofficially that the strike would have been over a week ago if it had not been for the influence of the radical element among the workers at San Francisco.

In Boston, it was declared by workers that there has been an attempt among the Communist workers here to foster a plan that no ships from the West Coast be unloaded either here or in New York.

WAITER HUNTED IN 2 TRUNK SLAYINGS

By Associated Press

Brighton, Eng., July 16—A stuttering waiter who mysteriously disappeared over the week-end was sought today for questioning in the bizarre trunk murders of two women.

A woman's body jammed double into a trunk was found last night. In the trunk also were the head and arms of another woman believed those from the torso found in a trunk checked at a railway station here June 18.

A description of the waiter, known as "Toni Mancini," was broadcast to police of the entire country and inquiries for him were made at French ports on the English channel.

He was known to have spent a few hours late Saturday night at a Brighton dance hall after a lengthy grilling by police before the discovery of the latest body.

Authorities closely guarded details. The body was said to be that of Violet Kaye, professional dancer, who was supposed to be filling an engagement in Paris.

When the first body was discovered efforts collapsed to link it with the case of Agnes Tufverson, American lawyer missing following her marriage to Captain Ivan Poderjay, in December, in New York.

Coast Guard Hunts 3 Adrift on Lake

Chicago, July 16—The Coast Guard cutter Rush and boats from Milwaukee, Racine and Kenosha were ordered to search for two youths, a girl and a dog, who were believed drifting in Lake Michigan in the 19-foot speed boat Apache.

The speed boat left Milwaukee Sunday at 7 a. m., piloted by Carl Keplin. Coast Guard officials feared for the safety of the three occupants adrift on the lake at the mercy of a rising wind and a choppy sea.

beginning. Each baby may be an improvement on those that have gone before, hence the rise from troglodyte cannibalism to what we humorously call our "civilization."

You learn about Amercan history in the big war, and also about our unnecessary entrance into that war reading Lloyd George's Memoirs. A British agent in Washington, having seen Colonel House, reported to Lloyd George, then British Prime Minister, the administration wanted this country to go into the war but was "uncertain about Congress and anxious about the danger of a cooling down of public feeling."

In condescending fashion the British representative reports concerning President Wilson's entrance into the war: "It does seem as if the Huns had fairly driven him into a corner out of which he can't possibly wriggle."

The most important line in the Lloyd George Memoirs is contained in a statement concerning this country sent to London from Washington: "UNPREPAREDNESS, EXCEPT AS FAR AS MONEY GOES, IS QUITE COMPLETE."

Our unpreparedness today is also "quite complete" and in case anythng should happen with our dollar worth between fifty and sixty cents in foreign money, the situation "as far as foreign money goes" would be not so good.

Miss Ella Virginia Von E. Wendell lived on the northwest corner of 39th street and Fifth avenue, New York City, and always refused to sell the big empty Fifth avenue lot next to her house worth at least two millions, because, "if I sold that, my little white dog would have no play ground."

She is gone, the little white dog is dead or pensioned the big house will be torn down, a five and ten and twenty-five cent store will occupy its site and the little dog's play ground, and the rental will go to the support of Drew University.

All is well that ends well.

Father in Cruelty Case Weds Housekeeper

MRS. CARON ALBERT CARON

Authorities decided to seek removal of the eight children from the home of Albert Caron, Sr., Manchester, N. H., after his admission in court that he kept his crippled, undernourished son, Albert, Jr., 14, chained to a bed. The boy is suffering from the effects of infantile paralysis and doctors say that he can be restored to health. After the hearing, Caron and his housekeeper, Mrs. Mary Anderson, were wed in Lawrence. (Pictures by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer).

Albert Caron, Jr., is pointing to his arm where the chains that fastened him to the bed were placed. He was taken to a children's home and expressed a hope that he might stay.

FIRE PERILS 700 RACE HORSES

Salem, N. H., July 16—Five hundred residents of this town early this morning came to the aid of Salem's fire fighters and police force in their daring and brave battle of two hours to save more than 700 racing steeds at Rockingham track from destruction by flames.

Faced with the tremendous task of pumping enough water from a point in the Policy Brook through more than 1200 feet of hose line, the firemen who had arrived at the track buildings within less than 10 minutes after the first alarm sounded, won the first stage in the fight on the fire that was destroying one of the most famous of the buildings at Rockingham.

"KITCHEN" DESTROYED

It was the "Track Kitchen," known far and wide among the horse breeders and racers of the country.

And before the conflagration was ended, the famed eating places was reduced to ashes, at a loss of more than $3000.

It was believed that if the firemen had not won that first fight to control the fire at the restaurant, whole strings of the stables quartering the thoroughbred steeds, would have burned, and most of the animals destroyed before they could be led by attendants to the safety of the track and the nearby fields.

For more than two hours, sparks from the burning building threatened the stables. Boys and trainers, some of them who have sleeping quarters near the horses running at the track, kept watchful eyes on the roofs of the buildings assigned to them. Men with water buckets in their hands stood guard, and when the burning embers settled on the inflammable roofs, doused the overhead materials.

500 FIGHT FIRE

The more than 500 residents of Salem dashed to the scene of the fire in autos and on foot. They had been awakened by the large siren which sounded after Emery Blaisdell, track watchman, had turned in an alarm.

The residents took posts along the long hose line, awaiting to help screw in more tubing if the water carrier should break under the long strain.

Sleep at Orphanage Eases Paralytic Boy's Agony

Manchester, N. H., July 16—Freed from the bonds which tied him as he tried to sleep at nights, and his hands no longer perspiring in heavy woolen mittens, which were bound behind his back, 14-year-old Albert Caron, Jr., today got his first peaceful rest in a year of torment and suffering, and today was much improved.

Police charge that his father had repeatedly mistreated the boy. They also charge that his stepmother was responsible for some of the agony he endured.

LEGS STRAPPED TOGETHER

Agents of the county found his withered legs strapped together. He had been sleeping on a bare bed with a blanket thrown over him in a hot and dark room.

Authorities have removed him to a cool, clean bed, where he is regaining his strength at St. Patrick's Orphan Home.

His stepmother, 35, the former Mrs. Mary Anderson, and once known as the "Snow Shoe Girl of New Hampshire," has aroused the city with what authorities charge is the most inhuman conduct in the care of a child in this city.

Without naming the woman or the father, ministers from their pulpits said that they were startled that such cruelties could be perpetrated in a New England community.

The boy is a victim of infantile paralysis. He was found by juvenile court authorities to be undernourished and underfed.

COURT ACTION LOOMS

The father, employed by the park department as a tree surgeon, admitted to police that he had tied the child to the bed for more than a year.

He added that the child had been walking the rooms of the Caron house through the night and had often ate plaster which he had dug from the walls of his room with his fingers.

Court action will be started tomorrow to have all the children in the Caron home removed to state institutions. Agents have investigated, according to police, and declare that living conditions at the Caron home were improper for the children.

FATHER WEDS HOUSKEEER

Four hours after the boy was removed to the orphanage, the father and Mrs. Mary Anderson left here and were married in Lawrence, Mass. It was revealed that they had filed intentions to wed in April and that a license was issued in May.

At the orphanage, the child cried:

"Please don't let them take me away from here. They give me plenty to eat here and don't hit me."

When found by police, Albert was suffering a bruised eye. According to the father, the boy during the last five years has been a pupil of a parochial school but is unable to count to ten.

The father said that he had built a fence around the home to keep the son from wandering away. Caron said:

"Lately, he has been able to break the strings he had tied on him at night. He would get loose; so for two or three months we have been tying his hands behind his back with woolen mittens on."

Caron and the "Snowshoe Girl," who had been employed as his housekeeper a few years ago, established a record run for "shoeing" from Manchester to Montreal.

Both are divorced. She is the mother of five children. Caron, 45, also is the father of two minor daughters.

All New England Hunts Bandit Cars

All New England and New York state officers were asked today to be on the watch for two automobiles carrying five men and two women, who, wanted by federal authorities for questioning in connection with the $10,000 robbery of the Danville, Vt., Caladonia National bank last June.

The cars carry Maine registration plates, and left Portland, Me., headed for New York, it is said. C. J. Firestone, head of the New York office of the Department of Justice, said the group made Portland its headquarters for some time, and when federal agents got on the trail started for New York.

ASTOR BACK TO 'SIGN PAPERS'

New York, July 16—Practically out of nowhere today came a fifth and sixth "reason" for the strange rush back east by the present first-string American honeymooners, John Jacob Astor and Ellen Tuck French Astor.

It wasn't a spat, the heat, lack of money or a new romance, involving "Tucky's" Mama. It was either annoyance over publicity on their honeymoon or it was because young Astor had to sing a trust fund in New York today.

Both new reasons were assigned by friends, but the still wondering speculators continued to regard the whole thing as a mystery, inasmuch as the same friends had first assigned some of the earlier causes.

In order, the friends denied today that there had been any spat on the honeymoon between the couple. Nobody placed much stock in the suggestion that the weather was too hot on the west coast.

Young Astor, hose fortune is estimated variously at from $2,000,000 to $14,000,000, gave himself the novel excuse that the expense of the honeymoon was too great.

"I couldn't afford," he said, "to maintain a private car any longer."

The report that "Tuvky's" mother, Mrs. Eleanor Livingston Burrill French, is about to commit matrimony with James Lenox Banks, rJ., pleasant and popular New York and Newport society man, came via the whispering route. Young Astor said he would not know about that, and why not ask the lady herself about it?

Like Mrs. French, thhe popular Jimmy Banks has been marriedbefore. His first wife was the former Vieva Fisher, now married to Dryden Kuser of Bernardsville, N. J.

The young and puzzling Astors were still practically under guard today on the 21st floor oftheir New York hotel, from where they are taking nips at thhe city by slipping out separately, using freight and service elevators and presumably joining each other somewhere away from the hostelry.

Yesterday the two met at a car outside the hotel, after Ellen had come down alone and hurried through theh lobby and John had emerged from the region of the freight elevators. Cornered, but for only 90 seconds, the harassed bride-bridegroom said:

"We are just going out for a little drive. We're going to stay at the hotel here for another week and shall go to our Newport home next week end.

Meanwhile, Eileen Gillespie, the girl who was to have been young Astor's bride, with "Tucky" French as a bridesmaid, was reported today as having a lovely time overseas, with a hint of romance in the Parisien air.

The day the Astors were married Miss Gillespie sailed for Europe with her mother. They are due home in six weeks, but friends say that before Eileen sails, America may have some exciting news about her.

PATIENT FLEES HOSPITAL

A close watch is being kept by nurses at the Deaconess Hospital on Miss Ora Childs, 23, of South Hadley Falls today. Miss Childs, under treatment for pneumonia at the hospital, was found by Patrolman Harold Stilphen of the Back Bay Station, walking through the Fens not far from the banks of the lagoon, clad only in a night dress.

She explained that it was warm at the hospital and she was taking a walk to cool off. Patrolman Stilphen wrapped his coat about her and returned her by automobile to the hospital where nurses declared that because of his care, the young lady would perhaps suffer no ill effects.

2d Provincetown Cruise For American Readers

Heeding requests of many who enoyed themselves last week on the "Mystery Cruise" aboard the steamer Steel Pier, the Cape Cod Steamship Co. will run another cruise next Thursday, but this time it will be no mystery.

So nearly unanimous was the vote of the passengers on the "Mystery Cruise" to go to Provincetown and see the United States scouting fleet that this time Provincetown will be the destination foreordained.

The same special rates as on the "Mystery Cruise" last Thursday will prevail for this week's special cruise, and coupons enabling readers of the Boston Evening American to enjoy these special rates will be published in issues of this newspaper on Wednesday.

On the steamer Steel Pier the excursionists will enjoy a beautiful ride through Massachusetts and Cape Cod Bays, along the North Shore of the Cape and the sight of Uncle Sam's fleet of 32 scouting craft, is one that never will be forgotten by the viewer.

Clip the coupon in the Boston Evening American on Wednesday and you are entitled to take the excursion at the special rate offered by the Cape Cod Steamship Co. for the cruise.

SCIENTISTS IN M. I. T. MEET

Leading world scientists gathered today at M. I. T. to discuss new achievements in spectroscopy.

Spectroscopy, the investigation of the light given off when electrons are hurled into atoms, will be the object of a week's meetings at Tech.

Medical experts, studying cancerous growth through the spectroscope, are to tell the effects of radiation on the cells of the human body. Geologists and metallurgists will discuss the analysis of metals by infra red rays.

The meetings are being held in the Eastman Research Laboratory.

3 MEN RESCUED BY OFFICER

Three Chelsea men can thank Patrolman James T. McAuliffe, attached to the Metropolitan police, Riverside station on the Charles, that they are alive.

Patrolman McAuliffe rescued the trio from drowning after two of them were dumped into the Charles when their canoe overturned and the third man, another canoeist, jumped into the water in an attempt to rescue them.

Hearing their cries, the officer went to the aid in the motor launch. McAuliffe jumped into the water and brought the three, one by one, out of the water and placed them in the boat. They were taken to the station and later allowed to go home. The men rescued are: Avery Wilborne of Carter street, who attempted to rescue the other two men; Horace Traymore, 24, of Chestnut street, and David Aronovsky, 24, of Orange street, all of Chelsea.

Chinese Brigands Free U. S. Pastor

Shanghai, July 16 (AP)—An American missionary and a Swedish explorer, reportedly seized by brigands, are safe again. Dispatches from Hankow said the Rev. Howard Smith, formerly of Washington, Pa., had been released by his captors, after two months a captive. A ransom of $35,000 had been demanded for him.

Dr. Sven Hedin, noted explorer, notified associates he was safe in Turkestan.

4 DIE IN FIGHT ON DOLLFUSS

By Associated Press

Vienna, July 16—Death and dynamite wrote a grim answer today to Chancellor Dollfuss' rigid campaign to suppress Nazis.

Political violence brought four deaths, widespread bomb damage and a wave of terror over the week-end.

Cities were thrown into darkne as defiant opponents of the Dol fuss regime renewed their activit Transportation services were cri pled; dynamite wrecked telephon booths, mail boxes and publ places.

Socialists, under cover since th bloody civil war of February, ap parently have started another offensive against the government.

Republican Guardists attempted to hold a meeting in the Vienna woods near Kaltenleutgeben yesterday, with nearly 1000 Socialists on hond. Two Fascists tipped of gendarmes and their appearance on the scene brought on fighting.

Three Socialists were killed. Nazi was killed Saturday in Vien

HITLER TARGET OF STUDENTS' REVOLT

By Associated Press

Goettinger, Germany, July 16—One thousand students of a university here staged a "revolt" against Adolf Hitler today, clashing with brown-shirted members of the student body who support the Chancellor.

After a fiery meeting at the Town Hall, the rebellious students, all of them members of fraternities, fought to defend their ancient colors against a deluge of Hitlerite youths.

Hoses played on the combatants by the Fire Department failed to stop the fight, but police finally were successful in restoring order.

Ten ringleaders were arrested, charged with "breach of the peace and incitement to revolt."

Two fraternities were suspended until further notice by the university president, acting under pressure of the Nazi-conducted students' federation.

The incident was viewed as significant, since it provided the first instance of open "revolt" among German students, the vast majority of whom have been ardent supporters of the Nazi movement from its earliest days.

It was also taken as an indication of the extent of dissatisfaction which was climaxed by the bloody June 30 "purging" of Nazi ranks.

The fraternity men were protesting the wholesale dissolution of fraternities, and the conversion of their houses into student "barracks," a part of the Nazi program.

SIX THEATERS FOR AMATEURS

Plans for six amateur theaters in Boston have been completed and a professional dramatic director selected for each, Park Commissioner William P. Long, general director of the municipal ERA drama project, announced today.

Anyone from 16 to 60, with an interest in dramtics, may register in his district. The director, their districts, and hours for registration follow:

June DeLong Takes Witness Stand

ARTHUR VEITCH JUNE DELONG

June DeLong, who it is reported took sleeping tablets in an attempt to end her life, was to resume her testimony today in Hollywood's "Morals" trial. She is shown being questioned by Deputy District Attorney Arthur Veitch when she was on the stand before and when she told of an alleged Bacchanalian revel which she said was staged in her apartment. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

June Vows 'To Go Through' in Film Trial

Los Angeles, July 16—Rested after a long sleep under the watchful care of a double-guard, June De Long, star witness of the Dave Allen-Gloria Marsh morals trial, declared here that she was ready to continue her leading role at the resumption of the case in Superior court today.

In a statement to Deputy District-Attorney Arthur Veitch prosecutor of the case, the blonde screen extra with the "most beautiful hands in Hollywood" expressed regret about escaping from her guard, Mrs. Marjorie Fairchild, early Saturday in their Hollywood apartment. She said:

"It just seemed as though I could not go back into that courtroom and face Gloria. I was putting her in a terrible position; I was hurting her and I still love her.

"MUST GO THROUGH"

"But now I see there is nothing else to do. I must go through with what is started. I must tell what happened."

Miss De Long had been found wandering in a dazed condition, half hysterical, here, by Mrs. Frank Gerard.

The screen extra escaped early in the morning, when Mrs. Fairchild, district attorney's investigator, went to a nearby store for food for their breakfast.

June declared that she mistook sleep inducing pills for poison. Mrs. Gerard, who found Miss De Long after police and sheriff's deputies had combed the city for eight hours, said Miss De Long gave every indication of having taken poison.

Miss De Long said:

"I wanted to die and I took some pills that I thought were poisonous, but they only made me sick."

Dr. Benjamin Blank, county jail physician, said Miss De Long apparently had taken sleep inducing pills.

The flaxen-haired actress, whose story of a "wild party" at her apartment precipitated the morals trial, could remember little of her wanderings. She told Veitch:

"I walked and walked, until I came to a quiet corner. Then I sat down on the curb and took the pills and waited to die. But all I did was get awfully sick."

Beyond that point, Veitch said, the witness' mind apparently was blank.

Mrs. Gerard was driving en route to her husband's place of business, an automobile sales agency, when she espied Miss De Long staggering toward her former apartment. Miss De Long was clad in the same red slacks and red turtle-necked sweater she was wearing at the time of her disappearance.

"I didn't recognize here at first," Mrs. Gerard said. "All I thought was 'here is a girl in trouble. She's sick.' So I stopped the car and told her to get in. She did so, beating her hands together."

June was found within two blocks of her former apartment, the place, she has testified, where she participated with Allen and Miss Marsh, who also is a film extra, in the asserted immoral party.

NAVY OPENS MANEUVERS

Provincetown, July 16—Massachusetts Bay resounded to the roar of big guns today as destroyers and cruisers of the scouting fleet put to sea for the start of a week of naval maneuvers and gunning practise.

Beginning of the maneuvers, which are shrouded in secrecy, follows the biggest day in the history of old Provincetown yesterday, in which more than 50,000 persons, the largest influx of visitors ever to come here, journeyed from all parts of New England to inspect the fleet.

LEGLESS BATHER HELD

Thousands of automobiles, excursion steamers and trains brought the record crowd, which precipitated a traffic problem of major proportions.

Despite the holidaying throngs, the day was unmarked by any major trouble or disturbance. The biggest furore was caused when a legless man was arrested for nude bathing under the town pier.

A local policeman, in a dory, effected the arrest, cheered by a large group of spectators.

Shore leave merriment of the thousands of sailors in the fleet will get a big impetus today with the disbursement of about $300,000 in monthly pay.

Visitors to the battle craft are being closely watched by naval intelligence officers on the suspicion that numbers of Reds and Communist sympathizers are in town, it became known today. Radicals in the writers' and art colonies especially were objects of the vigilance it was disclosed.

Vice-Admiral Edward H. Campbell, in command of the fleet, will sail tomorrow to Boston on the destroyer William P. Preston to pay his respects to Governor Ely, returning the visit last Friday here of the chief executive of the commonwealth.

DOLAN VISITS FLEET

The cruisers and other vessels in the maneuvers will sail to a point about 100 miles off shore. Return will be made to the harbor here tonight.

One of the visitors here was former City Treasurer Edmund M. Dolan of Boston, aboard his private yacht, who said:

"I'm so confident that Curley will be governor that I am taking a week's vacation."

Radio Operators Join Strike Move

San Francisco, July 16 (US)—In sympathy with the widespread strike in this city, the American Radio Telegraphers' Association voted here to strike immediately. The association has a combined membership of more than 1,000, with 500 members concentrated in the San Francisco-Los Angeles area.

Any vessel carrying passengers which should attempt to sail without authorized radio operators would be subject to penalty by the United States government, R. A. Byle, president of the association, stated.

Safe in Mother's Arms

BERTHA LAWHORN MRS. LILLIAN LAWHORN

Little Bertha Lawhorn, seven, of Shawmut ave., South End, was safe with her mother today after, police say, she was held all night in the room of a South End man, facing court today on charges in connection with her disappearance. Race to Woods Fails to Save Nudists; 5 Under Arrest

If you wish to go to a nudist camp, and if you are arrested while sporting only a wrist watch and, perhaps a couple of rings, you have all the chance of being charged with disturbing the peace, even though you do nothing but run away from the police.

And equally so, if you go to Lake Monponsett, where five Boston residents were arrested. They are to be held for hearing some time later in the week, authorities of Monponsett, reported today.

They were arrested when a police car drove up to the lake and saw six allegedly nude men and two young women. There was a fast run for the woods and a cottage on the shore of the lake. The two girls and one of the youths escaped. The five held are:

Farley Greets Elks

Kansas City, July 16 (AP)—James A. Farley, postmaster general, greeted brother Elks with a cheery "Hello, Bill," at the organization's national convention here today, but he threw up his hands when politics were mentioned.

MAN IS HELD ON GIRL'S CHARGE

Three warrants charging Walter Hayes, alias William Porter, 42, of West Dedham street, South End, with participating in an attack on 7-year-old Bertha Lawhorn of Shawmut avenue were issued today in Municipal court.

Arraigned before Judge Michael J. Murray, Hayes waived examination and pleaded not guilty. He was held for the August grand jury in $5,000.

The child is back with her mother after being alledgedly detained in the man's apartment all night.

Hayes was questioned in connection with the murder of Ethel Zuckerman in a Harrison avenue bakery last December. Sergeant Joseph Condon and Special Officer Michael Adler announced there was nothing to connect him with that case, but they would check his story in detail.

FR. SULLIVAN IN NEW FILM DRIVE

Changing that Will Hays and the motion picture producers are continuing to ignore the appeal of the "Legion of Decency" in its fight for cleaner films, the Rev. Russell M. Sullivan, S. J., of Boston College, representing Cardinal O'Connell, today opened a new campaign to urge all New England residents stop viewing the pictures marked as filthy.

According to the estimate by Father Sullivan, there still are $10,000,000 worth of the obnoxious films left on the screens of the five states. He declared:

"The center of distribution for New England is in Boston. Mr. Hays must have full and final authority to decide which films will be distributed in this region. The filthy films must be kept from distribution. That is the problem we are calling upon Will Hays and his motion picture producers to meet, and meet immediately."

According to Father Sullivan, the most vexing problem today is that of the films now on the market. He asserts that there has been no attempt by Hays and the producers to cut these from the theaters.

DICE BANDITS SEIZE $400

Police of North Woburn today were reported to know the identity of eight gunmen who leaped from three autos and robbed 35 young men playing with dice in the woods at Mill Pond of $400 in small bills and silver.

The leader of the gang shouted that his followers would shoot to kill any player who attempted to escape. All eight were armed.

Edward Hughes, of Main street, Winchester, is reported by police to have ran into a thicket. He was followed and knocked to the ground by a butt of the gang leader's revolver.

'beacon hill'

By Betty Alden

THE FLEET'S IN . . . more or less all in we imagine after a two-day holiday in Provincetown! We were there . . . a little breathless after a harrowing flight from Hyannis, or perhaps it was the thought of seeing a flock of uniforms again . . . our weakness.

There we were! And we haven't the least idea who HE was, but he was a great guide who covered the waterfront on Saturday night with us and stayed until the rosy dawn set the dim horizon aglow — one of those rare birds who doesn't wait for you to be amusing, he has ideas of his own. We joined the Navy and saw the town!

Dorothea Newman

Much as we loathe to rave about things, P-town is one place which can boast of real atmosphere . . . where you can call your soul your own. To anyone who has been crying out loud for a place that's different, we would suggest a week-end at the tip end of the Cape . . . preferably on the week-end of the 27th when the talents of the Beachcombers' Club are being assembled in the Town Hall at a Jungle Ball.

Who are the Beachcombers? . . . Did someone raise their hand? According to our guide (and after meeting them we could believe almost anything about them) they are the most illustrious group of existing artists, etchers, authors, and paragons of virtue who have ever been afflicted with the epidemic of modern ART. They may make history . . . but from where we stood they appeared to be thinking about nothing but food . . . we were privileged to peer into their jungle den whilst they were feeding.

Offer to Stage a Jungle Ball

NOT BEING OVERCOME WITH SO much grandeur, we asked the Keeper of the B's where we could find about three thousand naval officers who were reported to be wined, dined and danced by the members this night. Quickly recognizing that we were an ambassador of good will and not Mati Hari, he whispered that even in these magnanimous days of beer and occasional skittles wining and dining a fleet would mean the sale of more paintings, etchings, books and what-not (largely what-not) than this group could persuade an indifferent public to purchase in one lifetime of riotous living . . . the thing was a myth. And if it ever leaked out that the Beachcombers' Club was in the money to that extent there would be such a flying squadron of bill collectors swarm into town they would all have to emulate the playful porpoise and dive deep off a dead end . . . so that's that! The Beachcombers' Ball for the Naval Officers was just another little dash of whimsy on the part of a too imaginative n—sp—er re—ter.

It's a bad thing for a society editor when there is a depression in Beachcombers' balls . . . so taking pity on our confusion they offered to stage a Jungle Ball in a fortnight. If you want to see the world's best etcher, Bill Bicknell; the world's best marine painter, Coulton Waugh; the world's best portrait painter, Richard Miller; the world's best Grey Day painter, Roy Dickinson, and other world besters don grass skirt and perform a snake-hips dance that would make Gilda Grey with envy, seep around Provincetown two weeks hence on Friday night . . . and the Naval Officers are invited at a-dollar-ten a couple. Just another little wild party to tell your friends about . . .

An idea . . . but it did not help us one whit in the half light of a dying day and no place to go to find glamour. We wept . . . and that is where Fearless Fred jumped into the breach . . . really the automobile of a vintage year '21, '26 or '27 . . . and whisked us out to the sand dunes so see the glory of a Race Point sunset which so quickly rejuvenated us we accepted his offer to tour the town.

Beeautiful Sight

WE DROVE UP TO THE Pilgrim Monument (which we were told is a replica of one in Sienna in case you like to collect details like that; we don't) but our guide was a positive tome of history and unassuming little blondes can't be choosers! . . . to continue, we did enjoy the sight of Uncle Sam's sea dogs lying quietly at anchor in the harbor, dramatic in the piercing blue of the twilight . . . later they played searchlights across the town and waters which was beautiful and impressive.

Feeling very prankish and somewhat like a beacon of good news ourselves, we played with the thought of searching out a few Naval Officers on our own behalf . . . Fred proved a very bloodhound for officers and we felt a sense of security in his presence. He suggested a little Dude Ranching and we accepted with a precision that took his breath away — to discover that the ranch was one of the oldest and most charming houses in town, now a fashionable night club . . . and, if you can bear it, crowded with officers.

We would like to describe them all . . . space forbids. They compare very favorably with the E. N. O.'s—pretty smooth, we think, and if we can be inspired to get into a seaplane again will go down to the ball and see Oscar (our big moment) who resembles a marshmallow and has a pretty wit. The officers did not wear their brass buttons ashore, prefering to appear in white linen suits . . . cooler for dancing to the strains of the colored orchestra, no doubt.

A DASH THROUGH THE star-spangled night brought us to the Beach Club where there were more officers. The evening was getting gayer and we felt very romantic . . . rarely does anything come of it, more's the pity! We were hungry . . . but there didn't appear to be a peach-fed ham sandwich in the town, so we had to float around in a haze until the restaurant opened . . . the breakfast we devoured of ham and eggs, waffles, marmalade and coffee sent all ideas of officers completely out of our head. Our guide disappeared somewhere into the night so we have decided to tell you the whole story without prejudice . . . join the Navy and see the sunrise!

Mrs. Andrew Adie at the last moment changed her mind, stepped off the gang-plank and has not gone on the North Cape cruise. She is visiting friends along the Cape . . .

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. William Elkins (Eloise Weld) is entertaining her sister, Mrs. Bert Bigelow, and her young daughter at Woods Hole . . . they have taken the Richard Olney's house and the Olneys are residing in Dover.

* * *

Mrs. Alice West Movious is leaving the last of the month for Chicago to visit her daughter, Mrs. Potter Palmer, 3d . . .

* * *

Mrs. Frederick W. Eaton with her husband is sailing for England this week for a month and will return to Concord on her arrival back on these shores . . . her daughter, Dorothea Newman, will not be married for a year at least, we hear!

Pop Concert at Cohasset

On Thursday evening, July 26, Cohasset's annual pop concert will enter its 35th season in the Cohasset Town Hall. The proceeds are to benefit the First Parish Church in Cohasset.

Mr. Alexander Dean, director of the South Shore Players, who will be presenting "Possession" the week of July 23, is generously giving up the Thursday performance so that the pops may be given in the Town Hall. Mr. Donald Gammons again will direct the large amateur orchestra and Mr. George Mills White, Jr., tenor, will be the soloist. Mr. Hollis T. Gleason heads the committee in charge.

A few of the patronesses are Mrs. Frederic J. Gauld, Mrs. George B. Dewson, Mrs. Ralph Menard, Mrs. George B. Benedict, Mrs. Russell B. Tower, Mrs. T. Frederick Stoddard, Mrs. William Henry Brown, Mrs. Albert W. Todd, Mrs. Charles W. Gammons, Mrs. Hollis T. Gleason, Mrs. Frank Pegram and Mrs. Arthur W. Moors.

Garden Party for Home

Mrs. Edward Jay, general chairman of the ladies' committee which is working in aid of the Mt. Pleasant Home for Aged Men and Women, announces that Dr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Coolidge will open their garden on Lakeview avenue, Cambridge, on Saturday, August 25, for a garden party to be held in aid of the Home.

A fashion show and an entertainment furnished by various stage stars appearing in Boston at that time will take place. Mrs. Walter Powers has been appointed chairman of patronesses and Mrs. John Montague will be the chairman of entertainment arrangements.

The Mount Pleasant Home for Aged Men and Women, located at 301 South Huntington avenue, is engaged in caring for about 45 elderly men and women.

Melrose Woman Runs for House

Mrs. Mary A. Livermore Barrows, Republican representative in the legislature from Melrose for the past four years, will be a candidate for re-election, she announced today.

Representative Joseph A. Milano of Melrose, completing his first term, also will seek re-election on the Republican ticket.

Cuban Church Burned

Academy Graduates to Dance

Notre Dame Alumnae to Hold Frolic at Hull

A RED CIRCLE DAY on the social calendar is Friday of this week when two important affairs bring smart Boston to the South Shore. In the afternoon the Winchester Chapter Guild of the Infant Saviour are sponsoring an elaborate fashion show and bridge at North Scituate and in the evening the long planned annual summer dansant of the Boston Academy of the Notre Dame will be held at Pemberton Inn at Hull.

Plans for the dansant are being completed and a group of the young members of the summer colony have their heads together to produce something brand new. Miss Phyllis White of Brookline has been appointed chairman of the dance with Miss Eleanor Fallon, Miss Helen Callahan, Miss Rosemary O'Neill, Miss Murial Reardon and Miss Marion Chiampa as active assistants.

On various committees are the Misses Ethel Jarvis, Virginia Rowe, Murile Kingsley, Betty Crosby, Marie Hiltz, Mary Cashin, Mary J. McCarthy, Irene Ryan, Agnes McHugh, Mary Colwell, Louise McGuire, Ethel Fahey, Eleanor Sullivan, Genevieve Mullin. In charge of reservations will be Miss Clarissa McCarthy, and Marguerite Maguire.

Patronesses are being secured by Priscilla White, Louise Adamo, Martha Hurley, Jeanette Mullen, Kathleen Fleming, Eleanor Connor, Frances Nolan and Rita Sullivan. Advertising is in the hands of the Misses Rosemary Gorman, Harriet Lyons, Ruth Walsh, Clare Fallon, and Veronica Reardon.

Mrs. Thomas Walsh is president of the alumnae and will be assisted by Miss Winifred Randall and Miss Eileen Quinn in distributing tickets.

KAY FRANCIS WILL BE STARRED IN FILM BASED ON LOVE OF THREE BONTE SISTERS

Charles Laughton Selected for Lead in Film Version of 'He Who Gets Slapped'

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor, Universal Service

Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service, Inc.

Los Angeles, July 16—The scramble for clean pictures is giving new writers their long-sought opportunity. Ideas that yesterday might have been promptly discarded are snapped up and eagerly purchased. Jack Warner has just bought "Devotion," a story by Michael Varod, which deals with the love of the three Bronte sisters.

Naturally the heroine in this sisterly trio is Jane, who wrote "Jane Eyre" and "Billette." Kay Francis is Warner's choice for the authoress whose quaint stories were so much in vogue in the early Victorian period. The other two sisters, Emily, also a writer, and Ann, will figure, but not so prominently.

Charles Laughton, gone blonde for "Barretts of Wimpole Street," stopped on his way in to confer with Irving Thalberg to tell me that he has committed himself for a long, long Hollywood engagement. Later, I learned that Irving is so intrigued with Laughton's performance in "The Barretts" that he is arranging to star the English actor in "He Who Gets Slapped," famous Theater Guild play by Leonid Andreev. What will Norma Shearer do to follow "The Barretts?" She is so beautiful, so believable, so exquisite in her emotional scenes in "Barretts" that she will have to look a long time to find another role to compare with this one.

I am getting utterly bewildered by all the new faces and names in Hollywood. Its just almost impossible to keep track of the newcomers, who seem to be increasing in number each week. Katharine Hepburn's leading man in "The Little Minister" is a new name to me. He was signed during my absence and just now I am hearing about him. His name is John Beal and Pan Berman thinks he is a young man of infinite promise. Certainly Mr. Beal is getting the break of a lifetime playing with Katharine, the great, and having Richard Wallace direct them in the charming Barrie play.

Passage on nine boats has been ordered at different times by Constance Bennett, who now isn't sure just when she can go to Europe. Five times she has changed her sailing date simply because there are retakes for "The Green Hat," which she must finish. The Marquis de la Falaise, whom she will meet in Paris, has been delayed also. While on his picture there were two deaths of relatives among the native players and the natives immediately regarded him as an evil spirit and promptly ran into the jungle. Connie will be gone six weeks and during her stay abroad she will visit Holland, England, France and Belgium, to arrange for independent releases for the Marquis' first picture, "Legong."

Lovely Loretta Young is in Arrowhead Springs recuperating from her recent operation and getting her equilibrium back. Loretta has definitely broken with Spencer Tracy. There was no bitter fight, merely a mutual agreement to say farewell to a romance that both decided could not come to a happy conclusion. Spencer wasn't free to marry Loretta and she, under existing circumstances, couldn't marry him. It's a brave gesture on both their parts.

There is a new Franchot Tone in "The World Moves On." I saw the picture the opening night in New York. I had always felt that Tone was a little aloof, a little difficult, and that he lacked warmth until I saw him with Madeleine Carroll. I got none of that feeling in "The World Moves On," in which he gives his best performance. He has been borrowed from MGM again, this time by Warner Brothers, who are giving him the leading male role in "Just Out of College." An interesting cast this, with Jean Muir, Margaret Lindsay and Ross Alexander.

Charlie Chaplin's globe-gadding will be done in a new 125-foot motor boat which he is having built. He and Paulette Goddard, who is either Mrs. Chaplin now or will be before the trip is made, will cruise around the world as soon as Charlie finishes his picture, for which 20,000 feet have already been shot. Gloria Stuart is just coming up for air after the scare of her life and an accident that might have forever kept her from the screen. She was wearing a heavy metal lace dress, which came in contact with an electric switch, as she walked to take her place on a Universal stage. Suddenly it blazed up and, in an instant, she was aflame. Miraculously, Gloria was neither burned nor shocked. If the identity of Ethel Borden, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's able scenario reader, were revealed, you would find that she is in reality Mrs. Borden Harriman. At one time she was a social leader, and now she is not only adequately filling her job, but is proving herself thoroughly charming and popular.

Thousands at Esplanade Concert

Music devotees today were promised three more weeks of symphonic selections after 55 artists from the Boston Symphony Orchestra gave the first of this year's popular outdoor concerts in the new steel shell on the improved Esplanade. Many thousands heard Sunday's programs. It was the most enthusiastic reception ever received by the orchestra under the direction of Arthur Fiedler.

The new steel shell is scientifically designed and built to enhance the tones of the instruments. It gave perfect audition not only to those who were lucky enough to obtain seats by arriving early, but also to those who were forced to stand on the outer rims during the program.

Hundreds were in the seats as early as 6 o'clock, two hours and a half before the first strains of the program came in remarkably clear waves from the shell.

Director Fiedler and his musicians were greeted with thunderous applause by the throng.

Familiar classical selections were followed by Fiedler. The first selection was Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance."

Then came the swift tempo of Tchaikovsky's "Marche Slave," to "Air on the G String" and a group of Strauss waltzes from "Tales From the Vienna Woods." Also Wagner's thundering prelude to the "Master Singers of Nuremburg."

In a statement from the management today it was said that contributions for the concerts will provide for at least three weeks of their continuance and possibly four.

Tremont's Bill

An unknown player, new to the screen and to theater goers, may zoom across the film horizon when "Anne of Green Gables" is produced. Al Santell, director, started it. Then the RKO Radio Pictures officials took it up in a big way and now scouts are spreading fan-wise over the world looking for new faces and new talent to be used in pictures and to be moulded into potential stars.

Instead of waiting for those potential stars to find their way to Hollywood, RKO Radio intends to go out and find them.

Santell believes that there is a wealth of talent buried outside the walls of Hollywood that can be turned into stars.

Uncle Sam's rapidly increasing air-mindedness is vividly illustrated in striking pictures in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. At Dayton, Ohio, the crews of 10 army bombers are shown in the final preparations for their epochal hop of 14,000 miles to Alaska and back.

At Hendon airport, England, the Prince of Wales joins thousands of others to witness a spectacular sham battle in the air by the Royal Air Force. A miniature town is blown to bits and a captive balloon is brought down blazing from explosive bullets.

One of the most awe-inspiring pictures ever brought to the screen comes from the General Electric laboratory in Pittsfield, Mass., where natural lightning exceeding in force anything yet produced by nature is demonstrated. Terrific flashes are made with 250,000 amperes and 30,000,000 kilowatts, greatest voltage ever induced. Ear-splitting crashes follow each flash.

Given in Marriage

By Adele Garrison

Katherine's action and words lead Madge to believe that she has received further discouraging news from her husband's camp in South America.

CHAPTER 89

KATHERINE'S lovely eyes were shadowed with pain as I asked her why she was remembering the lying letter concerning her husband, which Ruth Allen had sent her from South America. It was hard for me to believe that but a minute or two before those eyes had held no expression save cheer and smypathy for me.

"Because I cannot forget it, Madge," she said quietly, "and because I do not share your belief that it is a lying letter."

My fingers tightened upon her arms and I gave her a loving little shake.

"I ought to take you over my knee," I told her, with an attempt at lightness that I quickly dropped at seeing a spasm of pain pass over her delicate face.

THE OLDER WOMAN

"Oh, my dear, forgive me!" I said. "I know. I understand. But—I cannot change my opinion. That woman was lying when she wrote you that letter. Do you—can you—believe that Jack, even if he had ceased to love you, which I'm sure is nonsense, could give a woman like that any cause for the awful things she said in that letter?"

Katherine's eyes were suddenly glazed, almost as if she were hypnotized into listening to something far away.

"She said—she said—that Jack did not care for me any more; that he wanted his freedom; that he constantly wished he was free, so that he could claim her; that I ought to have spirit enough to set him free; that—"

"Stop it!" I told her, giving her a real shake this time. "You are not sane about this. Do you seriously believe that the old Jack we both know so well would ever tell a woman like Ruth Allen, or any other woman, those things about you? Remember how square and true he always has been. He has been moody and almost impossible to live with in these later years. Forgive me, dear, but I am not blind, and I can say those things about my only living kinsman. But he never was petty and contemptible, as that woman's letter would make him out."

"The old Jack we both know so well," she repeated, and I wondered if she had heard anything else that I had said. "Don't you see, Madge? That's just the point. He isn't the old Jack any more."

"Then he isn't sane," I told her bluntly, "and you must judge him accordingly."

"I've gone all over that," she said brokenly, "and I know better, just as you do; only you're whistling up a dark alley trying to keep my courage up and yours. But it's no use."

She freed herself from my arms upon the words and stood erect, with head slightly thrown back, while every trace of emotion vanished from her face.

"WASH YOUR DISHES"

"And what a fine nurse she rned out to be!" she said light. "This is a good treatment for ayed nerves, I don't think. Now, ease forget everything I've said in the last few minutes, and go on: 'wash your dishes.'"

She laughed softly at an old household joke, a reference to Junior, who, when as a tiny lad he wished to be alone with me, turned to Katie and said with superb hauteur, "Katie, you go and wash your dishes." He had been properly reprimanded, but recollection of the contrast between what his grandmother called "the size of him" and his lofty dismissal of Katie, had been a source of merriment to us ever ince.

The barriers were up again. I knew that as well as if Katherine had suddenly put up a concrete wall between us. Whatever was troubling her—and I suspected that it was some fresh message from Ruth Allen—she would not tell me now. When the wedding festivities were over, and we were settled back in our old routine, I might perhaps be able to find out just what she had meant when, in answer to my impassioned query, "What should I ever do without you?" she had asked me if I were clairvoyant—that I had put my question just at this time.

AFTER THE WEDDING

I knew better than to utter a single syllable of protest, but I put my hands upon either side of her face and looked at her steadily.

"I shall say nothing more until after the wedding," I told her. "Then I'm going to find out."

"I'll tell you then," she said, and upon this promise I went away. I passed through the room into which the small boys were moving back, in order that Hank and Bill, due the next day, might have their own big bed-sitting room which I had fitted up for them in the summer and on through the back corridor and down the stairs to the kitchen.

But not even the sight of my little maid's cheery face as she sat with Jim, polishing silver and brasses, or the uneasiness which I felt at disturbing her with a request for the "special" dinner which my mother-in-law had demanded for Philip Veritzen, could banish from my mind the very real fright which was mine at the thought of Katherine's leaving me.

Maillots Are Property of But Few

By Annice Brink

PICKING a bathing suit needn't be in the same class with a stock market flyer unless you make it so.

If you feast your eyes on the fashion sketches of ladies 10 he. .. high and with lathe-turned limbs, and forthwith decide that a certain ducky-wucky skirtless suit is fated to be yours, beware!

Consider your curves, or lack o' them; above all, in the privacy of a shop cabana, wear the minimum of lingerie and try the suit before you even dare to lug it off!

BEACH CAMOUFLAGE

If you are tall, avoid the short bathing suit, for that turns stream-line legs into stork supporters. A longer suit gives you perfect balance. Maillots, or skirtless suits, belong only to the beautifully slim, preferably in the teens group. But the older girl who can really wear a maillot had best buy one, quick!

Extremely thin girls seem not to have the self-assurance that is the portion of the extremely plump coterie. Often I've heard a too-slim girl to whom a plunge in the sea is the world's best fun claim miserably that she hated like fury to apear on a public beach.

To such kind fashion's gift is the fabric suit of the non-clinging variety, such as gingham, especially the romper suit with square shallow neck, slightly puffed legs, and bows at waist and shoulders. She will look like an adorable slim child in this one.

V-LINE IS KIND

Two piece shorts-and-top suits of wool go rather well with the too-svelte lass. Halter necks are generally unflattering to her.

All the lines of beauty, chief of which is the V, had best be kept in mind by the swim-suit seeker who fills a 38 to 40, or beyond. Halter, round or square necks should be overlooked, and the long V or U that tapers to a V will be the kindest.

Acetates (if you care enough to wear a tiny, light foundation of lastex) will, I vow, make a 40 pass for a 36, particularly if one of those ultra-flattering capes is ensembled with it.

Summer Costumes All Bejewelled

By Prunella Wood

ALL the summer costume jewelry is not levelled at the trig semi-sports outfit. Besides the cool, clear colored bracelets and button earrings and clips of galalith and such compositions, there are loads of delicate crystal pretties that make a great effect with formal evening toilettes.

Take a frock of fuchsia or prune chiffon—colors which are coming in ahead of the autumn for which they were originally intended and add strands and strands of amethyst or sapphire blue beads around one arm and about the neck in lavish draperies, and you have something enticing. Turquoise in cables, or strung together at intervals on a fine cord of coral silk; or set in intaglio form in a mesh of ensembled silver chains is stunning and readily with the costume of black, white, and dusty pale shade.

Many a woman looks (or feels as if she looks) a bit bedizened when she wears a whole set of dashing near-jewelry, no matter how lovely it is. These are the women who may find that a bracelet and a pair of big earrings are what she needs, the necklace being the extra piece which makes her feel overdone. Now that clip earrings are so easily found in all types of jewelry, the trouble of wearing a heavy earring which spends its time falling off is all over, and handsome earrings will make a costume out of a very simple evening gown.

Complex Bidding Requires Exchange of Inferences

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Some hands at the bridge table so completely reveal their pattern in only a round or two of bidding that the correct eventual contract becomes crystal clear. Others, however, are more complex and require, in order that the full value of the cards be realized, not only the exchange of delicate inferences between partners, but perhaps even the kindly if unwitting aid of a hapless opponent. This was the case on the hand below, played at Duplicate, in which, had it not been for East's simple overcall, it is doubtful whether North and South could have reached the coveted goal of a well bid Grand Slam.

North, Dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

North:
♡ 10 5
♢ A K Q 9 7 5 3
♣ Q J 10 4

West:
♠ 9 6 4 2
♡ K 8 7 3
♢ J 2
♣ 8 6 3

East:
♠ A Q J 5 3
♡ Q 6 4
♢ 10 8 4

South:
♠ K 10 8 7
♡ A J 9 2
♣ A K 5 2

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♢ (1)	1 ♠ (2)	2 ♡ (3)	Pass
3 ♢ (4)	Pass	4 ♣ (5)	Pass
4 ♠ (6)	Pass	4 N T (7)	Pass
6 ♣ (8)	Pass	7 ♣ (9)	Pass
Pass	Pass

(1) A Preemptive bid of five diamonds would have shut out the Grand Slam at least and might have stopped the bidding of even a Small Slam.

(2) East makes a sensible Overcall so that West will open spades in case South bids notrump. He does not dream of the consequences that are to follow in the wake of his bid.

(3) It would be distinctly bad for South to double for penalties.

(4) In view of his partner's free response, North does not crowd the bidding.

(5) Further disclosing the distribution.

(6) Now North can show his void in spades. With South's second bid, the hand assumes Slam proportions.

(7) South, too, is interested. His four-notrump bid is conventional, showing two Aces and the King of a bid suit, in this case clubs.

(8) Having only one Ace, North bids for six at once.

(9) South's hand is stronger than shown, and he knows that North has strong trump support, plus a long and strong diamond suit headed by the Ace (for otherwise North would have "signed off" with five clubs over four notrump). Since North has likewise shown his void (or the Ace) in spades, the bid of seven is justified.

A spade was opened, which Dummy trumped. Now North and South took 4 tricks in clubs, 1 in hearts and 7 in diamonds—13 in all, counting the first.

It is interesting to observe that seven diamonds cannot be made, except against the Opening lead of a spade, as with diamonds as trump no place can be found to dispose of the losing heart in North's hand.

Tomorrow's Hand

East, Dealer.

♣ A K 8 7 6

South:
♡ A J 8 3
♢ 7 6 5 4 3
♣ Q 10 5

The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Never Too Young for Courtesy

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am only ten years old and have always wanted to know one particular thing. Is it polite to say "Yes, Ma'am," "Yes, teacher" or "Yes, Miss House" to my teacher? F.

Bless you, and friendliest welcome to my column. I believe that you hold the record as being the youngest lady who ever wrote to my column. Your letter was delightful, well-written and in fine form. Since you have this start in life, you will certainly go very far in learning and in accomplishment.

I'd love to have you get the charming habit of using the name of the person to whom you are speaking. So, to your teacher, say, "Yes, Miss House."

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Please tell me the correct way for a divorced woman to sign her name?

2. The correct way for a woman separated from her husband to sign her name? S

1. Let's say that Mary Smith marries and divorces John Brown. The correct form of name for her to use, after her divorce, is: Mrs. Smith Brown. Then her business and professional letters, and other letters to those who need to be informed of her formal name, should be signed:

Very truly yours,
Mary Smith Brown
(Mrs. Smith Brown)

It is not in good taste for her to use the name Mrs. Mary Brown either before or after her divorce.

2. A woman who is not divorced customarily signs her name as she did before she was separated from her husband:

Very truly yours,
Mary Smith Brown

Company Meal That Is No Trouble

By Martha Lee

From Martha Lee's Monday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB

THESE SUMMER DAYS mean that, for some of us at least, we have a little more time to visit with our friends and neighbors than when the rush of winter duties sits so heavily upon us. A "company" dinner in summer need be no more burdensome than the more elaborate affairs of cold weather; in fact it should be less trouble, for at this season the iced delicacies from our refrigerator may make up half or more than half of the menu.

But the main dish, for most dinners, especially when there are men guests should be a hot dish.

LAMB WITH PEARS

A shoulder of lamb, boned, and with a pocket cut in it for stuffing. One cup fresh veal, run through the grinder; one fourth cup salt pork also chopped; one and one half cups bread crumbs; one half teaspoon salt; one teaspoon sugar; one fourth teaspoon pepper; one teaspoon chopped parsley; one teaspoon chopped onion; two tablespoons flour; one teaspoon salt; one teaspoon sugar; one fourth teaspoon paprika; one can of canned pears.

Mix veal, pork, bread crumbs, one half teaspoonful salt, one teaspoon sugar, the pepper and chopped parsley and onion. Stuff into the pocket of the roast. Tie in shape, and rub the surface with a mixture made of the two tablespoons of flour, one teaspoon of salt and sugar with the paprika. Place in a hot oven, 400 degrees, but do not cover. Twenty minutes before the end of the roasting, surround with halves of canned pears which have been dipped in flour and granulated sugar. Brown the pears right in the roasting pan and serve them as a garnish around the meat. Make a gravy from the fat and fruit juices in the pan and adding some of the juice of the pears, with one teaspoon lemon juice added as well as the usual seasonings.

CLUB CHOPS

Have two chops for each guest; season with salt and pepper, place on each one a slice of onion, a slice of tomato and a teaspoon of minced green pepper and parsley. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and sugar. Cover each with a tablespon of buttered crumbs. Bake in a hot oven, 400 degrees, until the chops are tender.

CHICKEN, VENETIAN STYLE

Cut a young chicken in halves and flatten each piece with a heavy knife or cleaver. Saute in butter until well browned, turning from time to time. When well covered, place in a pot and cover with two cups of vegetable or meat stock or bouillon; add pepper and salt and a tablespoon of sugar, two sprigs parsley, a small bunch of celery stems from the top of the stalk. Simmer gently for one and a half hours and let the sauce reduce. Lay the pieces in a deep baking dish.

Thicken the sauce in the pot with flour, stir smoothly and pour over the chicken. Cover with a layer of grated cheese, dot with butter and brown in the oven. Serve in the same dish. Garnish with little rice croquettes, each containing a spoonful of marmalade in its center.

Mushrooms are good sauteed or stuffed and baked in cream. Stem and peel mushrooms. Never by any chance wash them. Choose firm white ones.

Shampoo and Scalp Massage in Five Minutes, and You're Ready to Go Places

POSED BY PAT PATTERSON

By Juliet Shelby

THERE ARE TIMES in every woman's life when it just is not convenient to shampoo her hair with soap and water and to have the wave set. And usually, as luck will have it, those are the times when a particularly exciting invitation is issued and you want to look your loveliest.

Oily-haired girls buck up against this problem more frequently than other girls. It is difficult for them, especially in hot weather, to keep their hair lustrous and fluffy. Oil secretes much more freely in hot weather, and the hair begins to look and be "sticky." But normal scalps and dry scalps have their problems, too. If it isn't the oil, it is lack of time to rush to the hairdresser, or terribly hot weather when the thought of a beauty parlor makes you want to run.

Some girls have admitted to me that at times they have resorted to dress cleaning fluids. Such carelessness should be punishable by law! How any girl can be so careless is beyond me.

I admit that "dry cleaning" is the quickest way to freshen up drab-looking frocks, but choose a fluid that is especially prepared for the hair, and even then do not use it frequently.

There is one such fluid, a new antiseptic cleaning agent for the hair that is derived from petroleum. It is really a dry cleaning process and is simple to use. Just drape your shoulders with a towel and pour a cupful of it over your hair. Allow your hair to dry up, running your fingers through it. The fluid evaporates instantly, and your hair is perfectly cleansed, and your precious wave is intact.

If you have a dry scalp I advise using the scalp lotion that comes with your shampoo after your hair has thoroughly dried. It relieves tightness and dryness.

So if you must spruce up in a hurry for a very special, special date, it would be handy to have a can of this liquid shampoo on hand.

You may learn the name of this shampoo and where it is sold by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Juliet Shelby, Boston Evening American, Boston. If you prefer telephoning for this information call Miss Shelby, Liberty 4000.

Fresh Air Best Nerve Tonic

Question: I am troubled by what my doctor calls "nervous perspiration." I have tried everything, but seemingly to no avail. Please help me. P. B., Lynn.

Answer: Your doctor is undoubtedly right, and you should do everything in your power to overcome this nervous condition. Can't you plan any more time for rest, relaxation and outdoor life? Try to get lots of fresh air and sunshine. East plenty of fruit and green vegetables and laxative foods. The very best thing, you see, is to get at the cause and remove it if possible.

Enlarged Pores

Question: Please tell me how to care for large pores on the nose and deep lines around the eyes. Please help me.

J. M., Arlington.

Answer: Large pores around the nose may be corrected by careful cleansing, plenty of cold water, mild astringents, correct diet and enough exercise. For lines under the eyes, avoid eye strain, get more rest and sleep, and more outdoor exercise which stimulates circulation, feeds the tissues and helps firm them. At night, smooth a good cream around the eyes, beginning at the upper, inner corners, describing a circle.

Use a good nourishing cream, an eye tissue cream or toilet lanolin. Pat the cream on lightly. Whenever convenient, use compresses of cotton wrung from cold water and drenched with witch hazel, cold tea or a soothing lotion over the eyes. This is soothing and helps soften the lines.

CAST INTO EDEN -:- An Ocean Paradise or Isle of Terror? -:- By Henry C. Rowland

Linda and Jerome Are Alarmed by Harsh, Mocking Screech Close to Their House

SYNOPSIS

Jerome Crain, young ship-builder, and a lovely society girl, named Linda, escape in a skiff from a yacht held in quarantine off San Cristobal. Jerome and Linda dislike each other, but, nevertheless, are willing to risk being mutually bored rather than endure an indefinite stay aboard ship. From the moment they land on a strange island, queer happenings occur. Their boat is set adrift, their clothing stolen; yet there is no other sign of a living human, except periodic cries from the jungle. Exploring, they come upon a small plantation and house having every appearance of being well tended but vacant.

They find some priceless Spanish chests, a heavy whip, plenty of food, but no clothing. Suddenly a bell clangs and again weird screams are heard. Darkness falls and still no one arrives. Dozing on the porch, Jerry awakens with the creepy impression that something had brushed his face. Soon Linda shricks—her slip had been torn off her by unseen hands in the dark. Then comes a slithering sound at the end of the verandah and again that mocking cry.

Terrifield, Jerome and Linda lock themselves in the house. Next morning, Jerry finds Linda's shoes hanging from the limb of a tree, the laces knotted-evidently the prank of some mischievous youngster. Later, they locate a decaying monastery and the bell heard the previous night. Attached to its clapper is one of Jerry's shoes! No human could have reached the clapper and no monkey had the strength to jam the shoe on it.

CHAPTER XI

The sun was getting high and they went back to the house. Again they failed to find a path.

"Strange that there's no trail up to the plateau," Jerome said. "I should say he had got his building stone from the old ruins. But there's no sign of where it was hauled down. However, the jungle would soon grow over."

"The food here won't last forever," Linda said. "The staples, I mean."

GARDEN OF FOOD

Jerome had thought of that. They had inspected the garden. There were beans, onions and yams, a stand of maize and a sort of squash.

"With the chickens and the fruit and these green vegetables we can't starve."

When the sun got lower they went down to the beach to look for signs of a sail. The shimmering expanse was empty of life, except for the pelicans diving into a school of fish a little way out. Some porpoises were rolling and that was all. When it grew dark they went in and lighted a lamp and overhauled the bookshelves.

The books were al lof natural and other sciences and travel. There was an encyclopedia published 10 years previously and several works on anthropology. Also a number of volumes of a metaphysical sort and some atlases. But there was no fiction nor were there any histories.

"Everything here indicates the retreat of a student recluse."

"I wish he'd left out a light blanket or two, and a couple of mattresses," said Linda.

"And a few tools, especially knives."

"We've absolutely got to do something about sleeping, Jerry. I'm apt to wake up with the pattern of that cane-bottomed bed stamped on me forever.'

"I've been thinking about that. It's one thing to sleep like babes in the wood when you're scared or cold, and another to make a practice of it."

"Everything," she complained, "seems combined to rub it in for our disgust of too much luxury and close contact with each other."

BOTH UNASHAMED

"Yes," he agreed, "there's a sort of irony about it. From being cuddled in the soft lap of comfort and under no compulsion to fight, here we are pitched practically naked."

"Well, what of it? We're modern enough to look at the thing squarely."

"And without the grace to be ashamed," she ended for him.

"That's just it. The bed in itself is bad enough, but better than the bare floor or these miserable wicker things. Besides it gets darned cold before morning. If I roll up, cocoon-like, in that sleeping mat you're apt to get a chill and fever maybe."

"I'll crash a chest. It's all wrong. We're being silly. A few clothes would keep us civilized."

"There's something in that," she admitted. "Two or three more days and nights like the last would send us native."

"When we wouldn't care anything about anything. If we were married it would be different."

"If we were married,' she said, "the fights would start again as soon as we got out of this. Even before, perhaps."

"I wonder why. We started fighting on the yacht before we were twelve hours out."

Linda nodded. "I decided you were too lazy and unambitious and fond of flopping when you felt like it to stick on as a naval officer. So you chucked it and used going into business as a pretext to loll about."

"You were right. I got fed up on Navy routine. I figured a boat building business and my small income would give me about what I wanted—then."

"But not now?"

"No. Business dead — dividends stopped."

"So have ours . . . and worse. Dad told me a few days before we sailed that the only chance he saw of my ever having anything again was to marry it."

HARSH SCREECH HEARD

Jerome was silent for a moment; then said, "I wish you had told me that, Linda. I'd have been less rotten."

"'Well, Tommy told me that you were flat. That's one reason I was sore with you."

He nodded. "Little brother to the rich. You were right. And now here we are both flat, castaway, and without the makings of a suit of clothes between us. Another reason for not getting too . . . chummy."

She said hotly, "It's not chummy to want to keep from dying of fright. Nobody can call me a coward, but there's a limit to what my nerves can stand."

She was interrupted by a strange hollow thumping sound from just outside the house. It was followed by a deep mufffled bellowing. No familiar comparison describes it. Something between the gruff angry challenge of a bull working itself into a rage and the preliminary coughing of a lion before it begins to roar . . .

Neither was it like the harsh guttural screech with its mocking note that they had begun to get used to.

It stopped in a gurgle and series of grunts. The abysmal stillness that weighted the place after the trade-wind had died out of the tree tops hung heavily again.

"God help us poor sailors on nights like these," Linda said. "What next?"

"This joker is grown up." Jerome gripped the oar butt he had carried all day and went to the door that he had shut and bolted.

"Keep still. Whatever that noise came out of is nothing to tackle with a club. What could it be?"

"Howling baboon?"

"No; we heard those things in Lake Maracaibo. This was different and first it pounded on a hollow tree or something. Leave it alone."

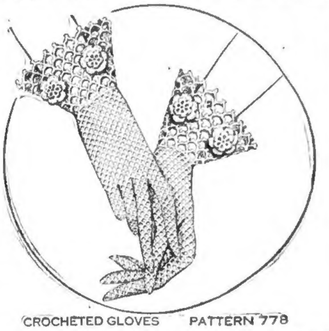
Wear Hand Crocheted Gloves



CROCHETED GLOVES PATTERN 778

The woman who wishes to add that note of real daintiness and smartness to her appearance is wearing hand crocheted gloves. Expensive to buy, they cost little and are simple to make with these clear directions. The glove, of a plain mesh, saves all its ornateness for the cuff, which though easy to do (it is a wider mesh trimmed with Irish crocheted roses), greatly enhances the beauty of the gloves. The cuff design alone would also make a most attractive collar and cuff set, being ertiking in its simple design. The gloves are worked from the wrist to the fingers and then the cuff is added, thus making it possible to use the directions for the latter for other things.

Pattern 778 comes to you with complete directions for making the gloves in a small, medium and large size; illustrations of the gloves as shown and of all stitches used, as well as material requirements.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to Boston Evening American, Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth avenue, New York, N. Y.

Pain Due to 'Focal Infection'

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.

A TERM, "focal infection," is commonly heard in every day conversation. I wonder how many who use it actually know its meaning.

By focal infection is meant a disturbance or infection existing somewhere in the body, but producing symptoms remote from the infected area. For example, you may have pain in the shoulder, foot or recognized and accepted by the medical profession.

toe. Upon careful examination no infection is found at one of these points, but further investigation may reveal a focus or point of infection in the teeth, nose or tonsils, or even in the gall bladder.

This localized disturbance is the point of focal infection. The poisons or toxins generated in the infected tooth or tonsil are circulating in your body. They set upon some weak place, causing an irritation there, but so far away as to make it difficult to find the real seat of trouble.

Through the teeth, tonsils and nasal sinuses are the most common sites of focal infection, the appendix, gall bladder or other organ may be the place of disease. Bear in mind that any infected organ of the body is a definite hindrance to good health and a stumbling block to long life.

No one will deny the dangers of a diseased appendix. Yet acute pain in the region of the appendix may be entirely absent. This confuses the sufferer who believes himself free from the danger of an inflamed appendix because he has no pain on the right side. Digestive disturbances, such as nausea and headache, backache and other pains may be signs of focal infection. Their presence warrants a search for the underlying cause of discomfort.

Listen World! Fear's Root of It All

By Elsie Robinson

FEAR'S ROOT OF IT ALL

Elsie Robinson

What messes we are, we humans! What muddles we get into! And what alibis and excuses we invent to shift the blame. For, no matter how guilty we seem, we can't feel that we're responsible.

We didn't want to do what we did. Nothing could have been further from our desire. And nobody could have been more surprised than we when the wretched thing happened. Then why—WHY—did we ever get into a such a jam?

Why did we tell that outrageous whopper? We hate liars. We know that lies never pay. And yet, before we knew it, there we were, lying like experts—and loathing ourselves for doing it!

Why did we fly into that awful temper? We despise people who can't control their tempers. We've always been proud of controlling our own. And yet, suddenly, we seemed possessed by furies. Heard ourselves saying unforgivable things. Why, we couldn't believe our own e s! What on earth made us do it?

Lies—tempers—that's just the beginning. Not a day passes but we do some cheap or contemptible thing that we'd give anything not to have done. Find ourselves gossiping . . . envying . . . grabbing . . . boasting . . . bullying . . . loafing . . . hating . . . wallowing in self-pity.

But why should we, who are kindly, sensible creatures at heart, do such weird things . . . things that are utterly foreign to our true natures?

Is it because our folks did them before us—because we were born with a secret stain in our blood? Or is it because Fate has stacked the cards against us? Or because it isn't possible to be decent in a savage world? Or because Other people forced us to it? Maybe a psychologist could tell us.

We don't need a psychologist to tell us. There's just one reason why we do the cussed things we do, and the dumbest of us can guess it.—

FEAR IS AT THE ROOT OF IT ALL.

Fear prompts every weak or vicious act on earth. Fear is the reason for every failure. Fear is the one thing that bars us away from strong, happy living. Not "heredity." Not poverty. Not lack of opportunity. Not the other fellow's meanness—BUT OUR OWN COWARDICE.

Fear prompts lies. We're afraid of punishment or humiliation. We crawl into a lie as a cornered animal crawls into a hole.

Fear prompts greediness. Fear of not having enough. Fear of having to depend on our own slim resources. Fear, often, of life itself. So we try to pad the frightful immensity of life with THINGS—with food and fine feathers, with money and power—grabbing, guzzling, because we dare not depend on our own resources.

Fear prompts hate. Fear of the other fellow's power or charm. Fear that he's going to put something over on us. So we clutch fear like a club—not daring to forget and forgive—not daring to love.

Fear prompts bullying. We try to hide our inner cowardice with outer bluster—try to forget our own secret fright in contemplating the other fellow's terror.

Envy, gossip, jealousy, self-pity, nagging—all these cheap, cruel contrivances by which we try to elevate ourselves through another's abasement—they're all rooted in fear.

Poor inheritance, bad environment, social injustice and domestic meanness—these things afflict us all. But, in themselves, they can't get you down—UNLESS YOUR OWN COWARDICE BETRAYS YOU.

Don't waste your time wondering and worrying about how you'll manage your various weaknesses or your neighbor's viciousness.

YOU HAVE ONLY ONE PROBLEM TO SOLVE . . . ONLY ONE ENEMY TO FIGHT . . . YOUR OWN FEAR. CONQUER THAT AND THE WORLD IS YOURS!

Shopping with Priscilla Price

Dearest Anne:

Shopping is a lot of fun these days. The shops are full of high heels for ladies, high hats for gentlemen and high hopes for everyone! Perhaps it's because it's vacation time—simply everyone I know is going around with that "off-to-the-races," expression that can mean only one thing—gay times ahead! But remember, you'll have the most thrilling vacation you ever had if you have everything in the line of clothes — beach gadgets — permanent waves — that you need. Now for some very wise shopping hints—first of all

The New Felt "Mandarin," $1.96

JEWELS STOLEN IN BEACON HILL ROBBERIES

In a new outbreak of crime in Beacon Hill three homes were ransacked while robberies and attempted breaks in other sections of the thickly populated districts of Boston included a holdup on the Common and the smashing of a liquor store window at Milk and Broad streets.

A door of the apartment of Miss Elizabeth Thompson, at Myrtle street, was forced and jewelry, valued at $260, and $80 in cash was taken.

Miss Mary Kenney, of Joy street, reported the loss of jewelry and household effects

A burglar climbed a fire escape in North Anderson street and jimmied a window in the apartment of Arthur Wilkins, taking jewelry valued at $150.

Arthur Brown, of Craigie street, Cambridge, reported that he was assaulted by three men in South Huntington avenue, near Museum road, He said they were frightened away when an auto approached.

Martin McCarthy, 24, of Walk Hill street, Forest Hills, reported that he was held up on the Common after two men had asked him for a match. He said that he lost $5 and a wrist watch.

The attempt to rob the Milk street liquor store was frustrated when a watchman in the neighborhood reported to police that a brick had been pitched through the window. The men fled when a police cruising car approached.

SPEED WAR ON IN SOUTH END

Because of the increase in automobile accidents in South End streets recently, Captain James R. Claflin of the Warren avenue police station today declared open war on speeders and reckless drivers.

A special detail of 35 patrolmen was sent out with orders to arrest speeders on sight. And Captain Claflin said:

"There'll be no 'fixing' of these cases. We mean to put an end to the wanton driving that has sent a score of persons to the hospital recently with broken arms and legs and heads."

Streets that will be especially watched are Harrison avenue, Albany street, Washington street, Shawmut avenue, Tremont street and Columbus avenue. Accidents have been especially frequent on the latter street, Captain Claflin said.

2 Workers Killed by Electric Wires

Thomas Howard, 27, father of two children, was killed in Danvers when he was preparing to leave a trench and touched a flood light wire. He is also survived by his wife and his mother, Mrs. Rose Cook, of Worcester.

Robert T. Lang, 22, met death in a boxboard plant, in Bradford, when he climbed to the top of an elevator shaft to repair a short circuit.

Dr. Barron Heads Hospital Staff

Dr. Elmer Barron has been appointed physician-in-chief to the 1934-35 hospital, visiting and consulting staff of the Boston Floating Hospital, 20 Ash street, Boston, it was announced today.

Dr. Hilbert F. Day has been appointed surgeon to the surgical service, and Dr. Harry J. Inglis as surgeon to the ear, nose and throat service.

Peeper Suspect in Police Lineup

Rocco Russo, 36, of Compton street, South End, was arrested by officers from the Roxbury Crossing station, on Bragdon street, Roxbury, a short distance from the New England Hospital.

Police suspect Russo as the peeper who has been terrorizing the nurses' homes at the New England and Peter Bent Brigham hospitals. The officers made a quick run after a call from a nurse and captured Russo near the hospital.

Arlington Dog Slain by Police

Before a mad dog had a chance to bite anyone, Patrolman Felix Lopez, of the Arlington police, shot him while a frantic crowd fled to safety. A stray bullet from the policeman's gun pierced the second story bedroom window in the home of Mrs. Esther Thompson, 1205 Massachusetts avenue, Arlington.

Somerville Man Killed in Well

Raymond, Me., July 16—Walter Sylvester, 76, of Somerville, Mass. is dead of suffocation when the walls of a well in which he was working caved in, although rescuers uncovered his head within a few minutes, he was dead before he could be taken from the well.

Girl Clam Digger Drowns in Channel

East Greenwich, R. I., July 16—While digging for clams at Conimicut, Mary Petrucci, 16, of Providence, stepped into a deep channel and drowned.

U. S. EXPENDED OVER 4 BILLION

By Associated Press

Washington, July 16—The government spent around $4,500,000,000 of emergency money in the past fiscal year, but nearly half of it bore a return address.

How much of that will come back is a debated point.

The best available figures indicate that about two billion dollars was used for loans, federal credit projects and in other channels, where it remains—ostensibly at least—an asset.

The rest of the $4,500,000,000 has gone out of the window with no strings attached, for emergency relief, civil works, civilian conservation activities, highways, hog purchasing and other welfare enterprises.

Some administration critics assert the nation's till has bid goodbye to nearly all its emergency dollars. Officials of the agencies concerned say most of the government's loans and investments represent real assets.

PIRACY, CLAIMS FISH CAPTAIN

The sea's punishment of a pirate today was demanded for the first time in 50 years when a captain of a fishing vessel reported to the United States Coast Guard Lee that he had been ovehauled 10 miles out in the waters off Gloucester and threatened with destruction if he did not turn back to his berth.

Violence was promised in connection with labor troubles among 61 members of the mackerel fleet, who remain tied up in Gloucester, although they were scheduled to sail last Saturday for the banks.

Today the Coast Guard is keeping a watchful eye on the tied up fishers. Other efforts are being made to question the skipper of the boat, which is reported to have at least 30 men aboard when the boat, commanded by Captain John Morash, was sent back.

THIEVES MISS ROXBURY HAUL

Arrival of patrolman Thomas Carey early today is believed to have frightened away burglars who had broken into a department store on Washington street, Roxbury, and moved the safe, containing several thousands of dollars, to the rear door.

While trying the door, Officer Carey noticed that the big safe was missing from the center aisle in the store. He forced his way in and found the combination handle knocked off the safe in the rear of the floor. Several chisels and a pinch bar were left behind.

The entire Saturday receipts were in the safe. The thieves gained entrance by cutting their way through the partition of an adjoining building.

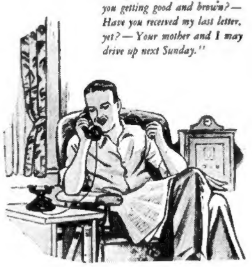
CALL AGAIN, SON!

"It's nice to hear from you — Glad you like camp so well — Are you getting good and brown? — Have you received my last letter, yet? — Your mother and I may drive up next Sunday."



ONLY A TELEPHONE can fill the bill when sons and daughters are away at camp or school, or just visiting. The sound of their voices every so often is tremendously reassuring, and there are a lot of little things that mothers — and fathers, too — want to say, and many questions for which they'd like to have answers in person.

THREE FACE ARREST IN BABY 'GIFT'

This Is Life
ROBERT E. ROGERS

Robert E. Rogers

Korpsbruder Bill Cunningham in a recent [illegible] of an esteemed contemporary offers me a job with one hand and with the other takes it away again. In his column he writes:

"Sometime I hope my good friend Professor Robert Emmons Rogers will whip together a survey of sport belles lettres, one that shows the typographical touch used in each particular town, drawing therefrom whatever conclusions there be concerning the character and intelligence of the communities served. The typetone in each village is different."

This suggestion leaves me in the position of the colored brother who was asked to change a ten dollar bill. I thanks him for the compliment but I just ain't got the change. Perhaps a year's hard work surveying the chief sport pages of these United States might begin to give me a glimpse of what it is all about. And [illegible] a bit too crowded for that.

The other reason I can't do it is because Mr. Cunningham, after making me the offer, promptly did the job himself. Indian giver [illegible]!

His thesis is that Boston is the most warm and friendly and even sentimental in its treatment of sports, compared with the hard-boiled, [illegible] skeptical and suspicious treatment given the New York gang. As to Chicago he is a bit non-committal, whereas the Coast, he says, is all brass band and blare and hurray-for-ourside and hot resentment at any Easterner who they suspect, is undervaluing the American paradise and all its works.

I must have to confess that about all I read of the sports pages are the human interest stories and the sport columns, as distinct from straight sports reporting. The technicalities of football, baseball, golf, tennis, basketball, track, and boxing leave me bewildered and, therefore, cold. But the human interest sports story or column written by a personality like Jack Conway or Austen Lake or Mr. Cunningham himself, I read with almost as much enthusiasm as I read politics and theology, those two topics which are permanently exciting because they are permanently insoluble.

When I was a youngster, 25 years ago, I used to read the sports columnist-poet-newsreeler Grantland Rice when he and F. P. A. and Goldberg were all on the New York Evening Mail. But in late years the only New York sports reporter I read consistently was the late W. O. McGeeghan, whose untimely death deprived people like me of magnificent entertainment. I didn't learn anything about sports from him, but I collected a lot of stray information about the 'cauliflower industry' and the habits and morals of wrestling pachyderms,' as seen by an extremely witty and experienced and utterly disillusioned gentleman, who also told amazing legends of the Rhine about cheese and beer and the Lorelei or equally amazing yarns about fishing and shooting in the more backward district of the south. When he died I ceased to read the New York sports pages. I have no doubt that mine is the loss.

But I read enough here in Boston to suspect that Cunningham is right about Boston newspapers, not only about the sports pages but the news pages. I have noted that visiting firemen from other cities always get quickly out of patience with the Boston press because of that very quality of neighborliness and community gossip that Bill mentions. The New Yorkers, of course, can't understand why the eternal imbroglios of Tammany and Albany do not rate the first page everywhere in the U. S. A. And they cannot get used to the tone of our human interest stories, our consistently sympathetic preoccupation with personalities, whether they be sports stars, politicians, gangsters and racketeers, lady defendants, divorcees or society eccentrics. Down in New York they like the human interest story, too, but they always write it with one tongue in the cheek and a raspberry up the sleeve. Occasionally the wit is so subtle, the face is so poker, and the tongue so well concealed that the victims of some embryo, Mark Twain or Jonathan Swift probably feel highly complimented.

Our visitors and detractors complain that personality stories which would be worth a couple of [illegible] anywhere else rate the front page in Boston, thus crowding out the details of the latest conference on the drug traffic between the Premier of Albania and the Third Secretary of the Section on International Commerce of the League of Nations. Washington is treated sketchily, as something which New England must stand for but will not take too seriously. But the lady whose neighbors want to cut down her willow tree, or the quintuplets, or the judge who considers college women the bunk as wives, these interest us strangely. That is because Boston is a very human place, full of the milk of human kindness, skeptical of reformers, fond of entertainment, and convinced that there's so much good in the worst of us that it doesn't behoove any of us . . . and so forth. You remember the old toast? Or, to go classical for a moment; nothing human is alien to a Bostonian and There but for the grace of God go we!

It would be a tough town for a Mencken to [illegible] in. Or a Walter Win[illegible]. Not to mention Juvenal. We [illegible] ourselves too well.

GARDNER HELD IN BORDEN DEATH QUIZ

A complaint charging Motor Vehicles Inspector Everett T. Gardner with manslaughter, in connection with the death of George Borden, negro janitor of Copeland street, Roxbury, was issued today in Roxbury District Court by Judge Albert F. Hayden.

Gardner pleaded not guilty to the charge and waived hearing in the District Court. He was held in $1000 for the grand jury.

COURTHOUSE CROWDED

Gardner is accused of firing three shots at Borden in a chase that followed an attempt to arrest the janitor on warrants charging automobile law violations.

Members of Boston branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People jammed the courthouse corridors while the manslaughter complaint was being issued to Sergt. Francis V. Sullivan of Dudley street station. The organization has declared in a statement that the shooting was not justified.

FUNERAL TOMORROW

The organization became active in Borden's behalf when Judge Hayden previously refused to issue a warrant against Gardner, but issued a warrant charging Borden with assault on a policeman who assisted the motor vehicle inspector.

Funeral services for Borden will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. from a Shawmut avenue funeral parlor. Members of the International Labor Defense League and the League of Struggle for Negro Rights will take part in the funeral procession.

SALEM OPENS GIANT POOL

Following dedication ceremonies with music, water sports, and speeches, the J. C. B. Smith Memorial nine and a half acre salt water swimming pool, became part of the city's park department, at Salem Willows.

United States Senator David I. Walsh, scheduled to deliver the oration of the occasion, under his doctor's advice, was still in Battle Creek, Mich., taking a rest cure.

Among those who took part in the dedication ceremonies were Mayor George J. Bates of Salem, Congressman A. Piatt Andrew of Gloucester, Christian Lantz, chairman of the park department, and Judge Robert W. Hill of Salem, trustee of the Smith bequest which with government grants and city action, made the pool possible. It is equipped well enough to accommodate the Olympic swimming and diving meets, and safe enough for the smallest child.

At the exercises, Miss Elizabeth C. Smith, sister of John C. B. Smith of Salem Willows in whose memory the pool was dedicated, was an honored guest.

Boy, 9, Falls, Cuts Self on Bottle

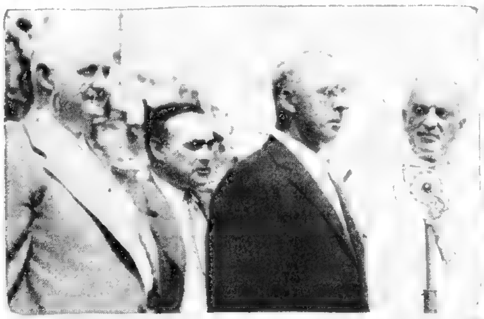
Peeper Hunted at Brigham Hospital

Police were guarding the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital today in hopes of trapping the "Peeping Tom" who has been frightening the nurses during the early morning hours for the past week.

Candid Covers Salem Pool Opening

When more than 30,000 persons attended the opening of the $500,000 J. C. B. Smith Memorial Pool in Salem yesterday, the candid cameraman was on hand to snap this group of bathers—the first ones in the pool for the day.



JOE MURRAY JOHN FITZGERALD MAYOR BATES CONGRESSMAN ANDREW

Mayor George Bates of Salem was one of the speakers at the opening. Joseph Murray and John Fitzgerald were engineers in charge of the project. Congressman Piatt Andrew also spoke at the exercises.

BOAT CLIMBS DOCK; OWNER MUST FACE COURT

Theodore Hansen, 57, of Dorchester avenue, Dorchester, claimed something went wrong with the steering apparatus of his motorboat when it suddenly ran wild and climbed up over the public landing at City Point, narrowly missing several children swimming in the water off the landing.

MOTHER, SOCIAL WORKER, MAN ACCUSED

Infant of Girl of 17 Was Abandoned in Roxbury

Warrants for the arrest of a 17-year-old mother, a social worker and a Dorchester man, charging them with the abandonment of a few weeks' old baby boy on the steps of the home of George Kanapolis of [illegible] street, Roxbury, were issued in Roxbury court today by Judge Albert F. Hayden.

Barbara D. Roukas, 17, of Turner street, Brockton, is the mother of the baby boy, she told the court.

Miss Aspasia Georgeopoutos of Columbus avenue, a social worker, and George Karbaris of Adams [illegible] are also charged with the abandonment.

Kanapolis' home was chosen because Karbaris had heard the former at one time express a desire for children. Special officers Joseph Dever and Frank Coleman of the Roxbury Crossing station told Judge Hayden.

The girl-mother and her infant were discharged from a Boston hospital Saturday, according to police. The child was turned over to Miss Georgeopoutos by the girl's parents. The young mother told police she thought the child was to be sent to the home of relatives in Ohio.

The identity of the child's father was not revealed by the young mother.

COOL WAVE IS NOW PROMISED

After a sticky, sweltering Sunday that sent the biggest crowds of the summer to Greater Boston's beaches, the weather man relented today and promised it would be more comfortable throughout the day and definitely cooler tonight.

It was the old story yesterday—not heat, but humidity, the forecaster explained. The mercury reached a high of 86 between 4 and 5 p. m., which is seasonable, but the humidity was 84—13 points above normal.

The mercury climbed as high as 80 at 10 a. m. in the weather bureau's official thermometer, and that was one degree above the figure at that hour yesterday, but it was not expected to climb much higher.

The humidity, meanwhile, had dropped to 64—considerably below the normal reading of 71—so that it was quite comfortable.

Fireman Hurt at Dorchester Blaze

Michael J. Riley, 42, of Adams street, Dorchester, a hoseman attached to Engine 43, Dorchester, suffered a fractured wrist and bruises to the body while fighting a $2,000 fire in a three-story wooden house on East Cottage street, Roxbury.

Riley was taken from the burning building unconscious after he had fallen down a flight of stairs. He was treated at the City hospital where he is being held.

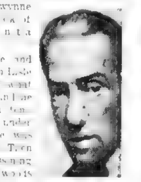
NEW YORK DAY BY DAY



O. O. McIntyre

New York, July 16. Diary: This morning Fred K. Detwiler sent his etching of The Arno in Florence which I've longed to own. Also came a picture of Will Rogers runaway mules. So breakfasting and Erskine Gwynne came and sat awhile to talk of the days when Paris was not a mausoleum.

Finished the [illegible] and with my wife to look [illegible] Bell brought down with what he calls "house [illegible]" and he complained they kept a temperature thermometer under his tongue so often he was smoking cigars that way. Then on to Major Bowes at Ossining and walked through his woods and gardens. Dinner at the River Club with Amelia Earheart and George Palmer Putnam. Then driving with the Martin Conboys in one of those newfangled three-wheeled motor cars, that turn on a dime, to see "The Drunkard." Also talking a moment to the Larry Waterburys and their handsome son who was sailing at midnight. To bed late.

Since the [illegible] of the Gondorf brothers, white-haired and aristocratic of manner, almost two decades ago, the wire tapping game, or as crooks call it, "the wire," has languished. It got too much advertising and blackmail succeeded it as the highest form of bunco steering. Wire tapping needs not only stars but a full chorus and elaborate stage setting—such as a bogus telegraph office or make-believe pool room.

Despite its cost and the depression, it has been revived and with success recently. Now the victims are women, rich, oldish widows, with a greed for easy money. Kidnaping threats stifle inclination to squawk.

Repeal has swamped New York with an oversupply of bars. So much so, hundreds open daily to practically no business at all. There is a fear that the mushroom growth will go the way of the Tom Thumb golf courses. In mid-town each bar tried to outdo the other in stark magnificence. Some spent $75,000 in decorations. Each, too, had its first few weeks rush, but in the majority trade dwindled. A half-dozen expensive ones have already called it a day.

Personal nomination for the least popular figure among the New Dealers—Prof. R. G. Tugwell.

Sidney Solomon, who so frequently flares into headlines as impresario of the Casino in the park, is a 125-pound dandy, with flashing eyes and hair en brosse. Flippant and dapper, even those who profess not to like him admit he has taken his bastings with the bravado of a bantam. In worst defeats he never fails to crow. He makes a rite of his daily barbering and manicuring, wears the most expensive clothes and haberdashery and walks forth invariably with a fresh flower in his lapel, the cock o' the walk.

He is a 75-year-old retired lawyer whose relaxation is dancing. Twice a week he goes to some fashionable place to dine and dance with a fluffy young hired companion. He spares no expense with the dinner and pays $25 for the evening. The only proviso is the dancing lady must sign a statement the evening was of a purely professional nature and release him from any further responsibility. New York!

When Marie Oliver Pomo discards a boy friend, he is supposed to stay discarded—which is why police today were hunting for a Dorchester man who wouldn't accept her dismissal.

According to her story to police, Marie, who is 28, had a falling out last week with a boy friend, who lives in Bowdoin street, Dorchester, and told him she was through.

Early today, however, he called at her apartment in Parkman street, West End, insisting that they make up. When she refused, he shattered the glass in the apartment door, she said, and then ran to the end of the corridor, reached out with a pole or a cane or something and smashed one of her windows.

Phone in News Tips to the Boston American and Advertiser — Win $50 Weekly in Prizes

Do you want to make some money for being alert? If so, the Boston Evening American and the Sunday Advertiser are presenting the opportunity. Every week a total of $50 in prizes will be given for news tips telephoned in to the News Tip Editor at Liberty 4000. And what is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an important meeting is scheduled for a certain date, that an accident has happened, that there is going to be a business merger, that a celebrity is coming to town? That's a news tip. There will be given $25 weekly for the best first exclusive news tip received, $10 for the next best, $5 for the next best and $1 prizes for each of the 10 next most valuable tips. This offer is now in effect. Remember that SPEED is the watchword. First to the telephone wins the award. News tips mean money.

THE MODERN MAUD

Maud Muller on a Summer's day
Lay on the beach in disarray

As she watched the waves come in
She puffed her weed and sipped her gin

A judge, who was just passing by,
Mentioned he was rather dry

(This judge thought up Blue Laws, we think,
And yet his nose was rosy pink!)

Maud Muller guessed the Judge had notions,
So poured for him some soothing lotions.

She gave him drink and called him honey.
Now he pays her alimony.

It's Ah! for Maud Muller, and Oh! for the judge:
Rich divorcee and alimony drudge!

And of all the glad words of tongue or pen

By AUSTEN LAKE

HAVING BEEN REARED in a frugal school, whose favorite copybook exercise implied that a penny squandered was a penny subscribed to the devil's campaign fund I spent last springtime in wondering what Thomas Yawkey was going to get out of his lavish spending jag of the last 12 months.

Austen Lake

I was thinking of the $2,500,000 which he shovelled out of his cash bins for the Red Sox franchise, for Bob Quinn's tumble down property and for the building of his deluxe stadium with its tiled, cozy rooms and open-vision stands. And about the $530,000 which, I estimate with my talent for hitting the bull's-eye, he riffled off his bankroll for 19 ball players as follows.

Bob Grove, Athletics	$125,000
Rick Ferrell, Browns	50,000
Lloyd Brown, Browns	50,000
Lyn Lary, Yankees	35,000
Dusty Cooke, Yankees	30,000
Julius Solters, Baltimore	25,000
George Pipgras, Yankees	25,000
Rube Walberg, Athletics	25,000
Bill Werber, Yankees	25,000
Wes Ferrell and Dick Porter, Cleveland	25,000
Fritz Ostermueller, Rochester	25,000
Carl Reynolds, Browns	20,000
Buck Walters, Seattle	15,000
Gordon Hinkle, Rochester	15,000
Mel Almada, Seattle	10,000
Fred Muller, Seattle	10,000
Max Bishop, Athletics	15,000
Ed Morgan, New Orleans (draft)	5,000

That makes $530,000, I believe, not detailing several trades which removed players like Brown for Cissell at an even swap. Nor does it include Dusty Rhodes Henry Johnson and Roy Johnson, whom Yawkey inherited from Quinn.

I am hearing now, that if the Red Sox should perform a modern miracle and win the 1934 pennant, the club treasury would be enriched by $500,000. Or that, without the World Series, its gleanings will come to $350,000, clear profit. And that would be 11 per cent on his original investment.

And where, Horatio, in the realm of present day finance, may one shave off 11 per cent from one's capital, and still retain all, or most, of the physical effects?

Food and Its Meaning to Londos and George

CONSIDERING THE AMOUNT of energy cells Jim Londos and Ed George are exploding each afternoon of their training for the championship match at Fenway Park next Wednesday evening, one would expect them to be enormous eaters.

The contrary is the case. Both eat sparingly of raw fruit and uncooked cereal for breakfast. George eats no lunch, while Londos swiggles a glass of milk and a salad without dressing. For the evening meal, George munches a normal order of chicken or steak, and Londos, who never eats chicken, usually dines on a brace of lamb chops and boiled eggs. Neither eats desserts or sweets of any kind Londos regards milk as the most natural and nourishing of all foods. "I could live on milk," he told me. Occasionally, with his evening meal, he takes a glass of sherry or port, a concession to his old world rearing.

I used to know a little quarterback at Lafayette College, a lad named Bunny Larch an dweighing perhaps 140 pounds, who would sit down a teach meal and stoke his stomach with enough food to keep a squad of wrestlers alive. Yet he never varied on the scales, weighing 140 each afternoon.

Londos says: "The secret of eating is to know when you have had enough and to rise from the table still feeling the least bit hungry." Which is a form of will-power unknown to the general run of folk, whether athletic or otherwise.

IF THE B. & M. RAILROAD consents to lease its Boston Garden to the Arena interests, the Bruins Hockey Club is apt to find itself in a tight little rental predicament.

The Arena is sure to remember that the Bruins voided their original contract in order to go over to the Garden some years ago. And two years ago, when seeking to effect a reduction of the $100,000 yearly rental charged by the Garden, the Bruins used the Arena's bargain quotation to beat the Garden down

With a monopoly on the only available ice rinks in Boston, the Bruins may have to pay up or move out of Boston, the latter threat having been mentioned by C. F. Adams several times during the last few years.

Applause for Buck Jordan and a Belated Apology

BASEBALL FANS, and oftentimes sport writers, frequently fail to understand the backstage reasons for a player's slump. I am thinking of Buck Jordan of the Braves, whom I lashed unmercifully in 1933 for his halfhearted manner on the field.

What I did not know at the time and learned recently was that Jordan's two small children had died within a short space of one another, being taken suddenly with a virulent disease. And soon thereafter Mrs. Jordan, under the shock, had been confined to a sanitarium, dangerously ill

I learned this one day when Bill McKechnie, a sympathetic man, commented on the great liking his own small daughter, a winsome lass of six, had for big Buck, so that she used to climb all over him. And Buck, a silent, almost morose type, would cuddle the baby and talk simple little words, mutually understood

"I don't see how Jordan can stand it," said McKechnie thoughtfully, and told me the whole pathetic history.

Which is why, now, I rejoice to see Jordan second among the Braves hitters and close underneath Wally Berger. Because, unconsciously last year, I did him an injustice when he was carrying around an inner, spiritual load that would have broken the heart of a less courageous man.

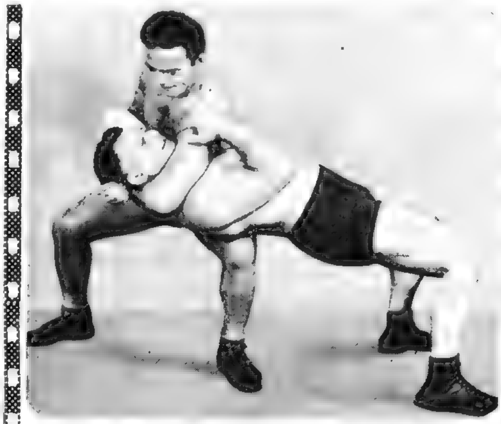
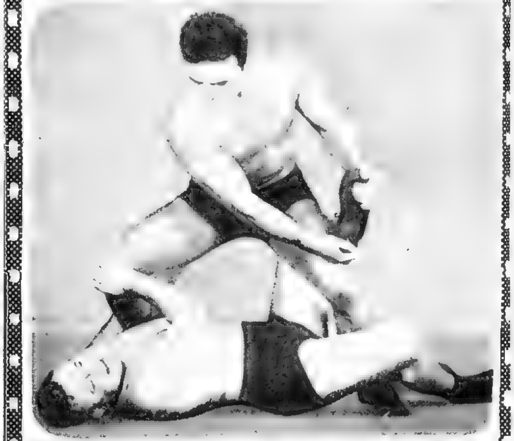
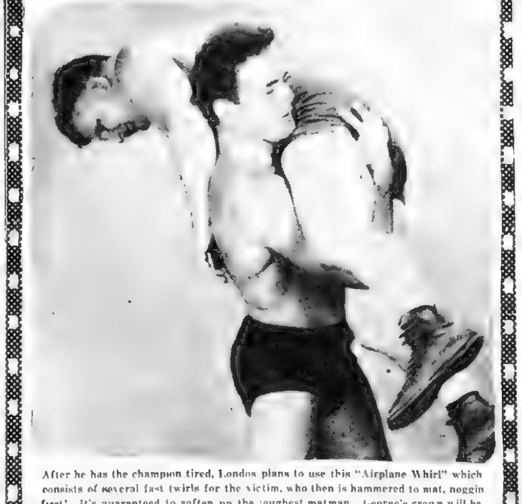
Londos Shows Holds He's Sure Can Pin Don



Jimmy Londos gives a snappy demonstration of the three holds he is sure will win him the undisputed world heavyweight mat title on Wednesday night at Fenway Park, when he duels champion Ed George. Here is the "Unconscious" hold, which Jim says is NOT a strangle. Jack Albright is the victim.



Maybe the Unconscious hold won't fool George. In that case Londos will test this torturing "Leg Breaker." The opponent then has to quit or have his leg broken. Nice gentle play! But then, Londos expects a hard match. He intends to be prepared if the Don gets rough. It will be a thrilling duel.



After he has the champion tired, Londos plans to use this "Airplane Whirl" which consists of several fast twirls for the victim, who then is hammered to mat, noggin first! It's guaranteed to soften up the toughest matman. George's crown will be in grave peril, if Londos succeeds in using this hold. A crowd of 40,000 is expected to watch the battle. STOEFEN GAINS PAIR JOB

By Associated Press

London, July 16—Frank X. Shields, Sidney B. Wood, Jr., Lester Stoefen and George M. Lott, Jr., were named as the United States team to meet Australia this week-end in the inter-zone final of Davis cup competition.

W[illegible] Allison was summoned to London at the last minute as a possible replacement for Stoefen [illegible] was not named. He arrived only Saturday and appeared to be short of his best form in his practice.

THE HIT AND RUN PLAY

The usual method in the major Leaguesis is now isthe time odd Leagues is , with a man on first and the hit-and-run sign on, for the bater to make an intentional wild swing at the wirst pitch while the runner take a start toward second. Thus, the batter can tell by the way the short stop and second baseman act, which is going to cover the bag.

On the second or third pitch, according to the signal, the play is on in earnest and the batter tries to hit through the hole left vacant by the man who covers the bag. Sometimes the pitcher, sensing the play, will pitch wide of the plate, in which event the batter must protect the runner even if he has to throw his bat at the ball in the hope of fouling it off or merely to confuse the catcher.

SIXTH RACE

Piecemeal, Baboo, Rhodius

PIECEMEAL, second to Sambo Brown last out, shapes up as decidedly the best of this lot. Prior [illegible] his last race he drubbed a field [illegible] this sort over the same distance. BABOO, an unruly post actor, has been there or thereabouts in his recent starts and looks next best.

SEVENTH RACE

Calome, Gallic, Kibitzer

CALOME pulled up three lengths in advance of Brown Wisdom and other fair ones in his last outing and may make it two straight in this affair. GALLIC was beaten only a nose by Kindacorn in her last. The Galetian mare shapes up as the most dangerous off that effort. KIBITZER failed to run his race last out. However, prior to that he had drubbed a fair lot.

'BRAIN TRUSTS' AID YACHT CUP CONTENDERS

By Associated Press

Newport, R. I., July 16.—Competition in the trials for the selection of a defender of the America's Cup was resumed today on the ocean course off Newport with Yankee paired against Vanitie, now ineligible, and with Rainbow pitted against Weetamoe.

The rivalry has become so keen that the three candidates have organized "brain trusts" in their afterguards.

With Richard Fay, professor of communications in the electrical engineering department of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, already plotting courses for Yankee, the Boston aspirant, another [illegible] professor will soon assume the same responsibility aboard Rainbow as navigator of the Harold S. Vanderbilt craft.

Frederick Prince, owner of the third entry, Weetamoe, has announced a Spanish nobleman, the Duke of Santa Maria, will join the afterguard of that craft in the role of navigator.

Today's contest was expected to show the value of Rainbow's new double clewed jib. The new sail is similar to that reported in use on Endeavour, Tom Sopwith's British challenger. Rainbow's hollow beam forward had made sheeting home her old jib a difficult problem.

Yankee returned to the lists today with the best record for the trials to date. Except through a technicality, she has not been beaten by an eligible rival.

The improvement in American Telephone affairs naturally is reflected in the earnings statement. Treating the system as a whole, and including Western Electric, preliminary data indicate that Telephone earned [illegible] per common share for the first six months as compared with [illegible] half earnings in 1933 of [illegible]. Not including the loss of Western Electric per share earnings amounting to $4.55. Another feature of the current report is that earnings only include about 5 cents per share received by the parent company in dividends. The 1933 figure was 65 cents.

Much has been written about gold and silver as inflation hedges. Now let us tell you about platinum, with the help of an editorial in the American Banker. This rare metal is actually undervalued on the present value basis for gold. Gold is up 169 per cent of its old value. Platinum is up from $36 to $57 per troy ounce. That is 112 per cent of its value. It is traded for cash in 100-ounce bars and dealers say there is increasing interest from hoarders, investors and conservators.

UNITED STATES WILL SURVIVE, SAYS FORBES

Will Move Forward to Much Better Conditions

By B. C. FORBES

To those who accuse me of being a pessimist, a reactionary, a grouch, let me reply:

"I have unshakeable faith that, regardless of what Washington or financial leaders or industrialists or labor leaders may do, America will not only survive but move forward sooner or later, to better conditions than ever before enjoyed, even in our greatest boom times."

B. C. Forbes

This country [illegible] such [illegible] resourcefulness, too much self-confidence, too much energy to be cowed and [illegible] period.

T[illegible] of affairs contrive to expand employment during coming months, Washington may feel obliged to resort to drastic measures with a view to reviving prosperity.

For my part I would much rather [illegible] pay envelopes during the balance of this year than behold a display by such interests of timidity, inactivity, contraction.

Even should the worst come to the worst, even should the opening of 1935 find a hesitant America, an America still strewn with unemployment, an America repelling rather than [illegible] America of falling and not rising values, I have faith that regardless of whatever drastic steps Washington might feel impelled to take [illegible] experienced.

In other words while temporary [illegible] conditions may bring about further un-American experiments [illegible] temporarily America may lurch towards the left, towards Fascism or Sovietism, [illegible] ultimately the inherent characteristic and quality of the American people will reassert themselves and become the guiding principles and policies of American government.

Which nationals are today enjoying the [illegible]

Is [illegible] true that [illegible] American citizens would elect rather to enjoy their inherited rights as sovereign citizens, even though suffering economic hardships, than exchange their birthright for any form of dictatorship under the sun?

What has happened in Britain, what has happened in France, what has happened in Canada suggests [illegible] for an industrious [illegible] people to wrestle effectively with economic problems, without placing themselves under the whims of an untrammeled dictator.

As I see it, America should strive with might and main to overcome her current economic obstacles without departing one inch more than necessary from her constitutional course, without sacrificing one jot or tittle more of her individual rights than absolutely necessary.

But the country must carry on.

If [illegible] ceases miserably [illegible] the job then the job must be tackled by others [illegible]

All [illegible] a reasonable approach [illegible] can be achieved before congress meets in January.

If [illegible] Congress finds the [illegible] state, it unquestionably will resort to additional drastic legislative measures and delegate still further arbitrary powers to President Roosevelt.

The people must keep on carrying on.

Stock Averages Are Creeping Upward

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

New York, July 16—The general position of the average stock is one of trying to creep upward. In fact, a "five-week moving average" of representative stocks has continued to crawl ahead for several weeks.

There are so many uncertainties and drawbacks, however, that the upward progress is difficult and halting. Traders take small profits. From time to time semi-traders get cold feet and liquidate. Always we find a notable absence of buying on the rise and even most of the more bullish wait for dips.

Some say there is "quiet accumulation." The sort of buying which is most characteristic of this market, however, is not accumulation in the ordinary sense. It does not represent any "operations" for the [illegible] of excess funds and hedging against inflation. But it may have somewhat the same effect as "accumulation."

The charts show that a clear-cut "double bottom" was made in the averages last May. This is not likely to be broken, unless on very bad and unexpected news.

Then came the upturn in early June, which carried the averages a little more than halfway back to the April peak. Since then the [illegible] a narrow ta[illegible]

The chart [illegible] has been much the [illegible] several rallies, namely, a couple of one-day pushes, followed by resting "shelves." But this rise has been more gradual and feeble than others and it is notable that on Friday a majority of stocks traded showed declines.

It seems quite possible, however, that the usual formation may carry through. In that case, a third push is to be expected before any considerable reaction occurs. This would test the previous June high.

Perhaps the position of the market is now most like that found in November-December, 1933, or action and the general position in the "intermediate" [illegible] similar.

The bonds of the District are authorized [illegible] Chapter 383 of the Massachusetts Laws of 1929, Chapter 11[illegible] of the Laws of 1932, and Chapter [illegible] of the Laws of 193[illegible] and Chapter [illegible] of the Laws of 1934 authorize the bonds to be issued to provide funds for the purchase by the District of $1,581,000 of bonds of Boston Elevated Railway Company maturing August 1, 1959 (or 1949 if that be the final maturity specified in the accepted bid), and bearing a rate two per cent (2%) higher than the rate of these Bonds of the District. Said bonds of Boston Elevated Railway Company are to be issued for the purpose of paying or refunding $1,581,000 of its bonds maturing August 1, 1934. The issue and sale of the Bonds will be subject to approval of legality by Messrs. Ropes, Gray, Boyden & Perkins, whose legal opinion will be furnished without charge to the purchaser.

Subject to the approval of the Massachusetts Department of Public Utilities of the maturities and interest rate, the Bonds will be delivered to the purchaser on or about August 1, 1934, at ten o'clock A. M. daylight saving time, in Boston, Massachusetts, and are to be paid for on such delivery in cash or by a certified check on a responsible national bank or trust company in Boston, payable to the order of Boston Metropolitan District.

Each proposal should state full details and be marked "Proposal for Bonds" and delivered to the Trustees of the Boston Metropolitan District, 20 Somerset street, Boston, Massachusetts, accompanied by a certified check on a responsible national bank or trust company in Boston, payable to the order of Boston Metropolitan District, in the sum of 1% of the amount of the bid as a guaranty of good faith on the part of the bidder. Such check will be returned if the bid is not accepted [illegible] or if the Massachusetts Department of Public Utilities does not approve the maturities and interest rate of the Bonds, but otherwise will be retained as part payment on account of the bid accepted or forfeited to the District as liquidated damages if the bidder whose bid is accepted fails to complete the purchase. The Trustees reserve the right to reject any and all bids [illegible] rejection of all bids or on failure to complete any purchase by a purchaser whose bid is accepted the Trustees reserve the right to sell any or all Bonds at private sale without further advertising or notice. Bids are to be accepted or rejected within twenty four hours after the opening of the bids, and bidders will be deemed to agree that their bids remain in force until accepted or rejected by vote of the Trustees within that time. Upon such acceptance, the accepted bid and vote of acceptance shall, subject to the approval of the Massachusetts Department of Public Utilities as aforesaid on or before July 27, 1934 constitute a binding contract between the District and the bidder whose bid is accepted, on the terms stated in this offer for bids and in the accepted bid.

By authority of the Trustees of Boston Metropolitan District

20 Somerset Street,
Boston, Massachusetts.

STOCK PRICES IRREGULAR IN DULLNESS

New York, July 16—The stock market moved irregularly lower today reflecting the apprehension over the turn of events on the west coast where a general strike was to start this morning.

Railroad shares continued heavy again with Atchison, Lackawanna, New York Central and several others declining fractionally.

United States Steel and other steel shares also were under pressure losing up to half a point.

The commodity markets were sharply mixed. Cotton advanced $1 a bale in fast trading at the start while wheat and the other grains suffered fractional losses.

Moderately lower prices ruled in the first hour of trading with volume off considerably from last week. Spiegal May Stern was down more a point. Union Carbide was down a point and U. S. Steel was a major fraction below Saturday's closing price.

American Sugar was more than a point lower. American Can dropped more than a point. Du Pont showed a loss of slightly more than a point. Westinghouse was down a major fraction. Wright Aero showed a loss of more than a point.

Aside from Pacific Coast developments, short crops and industrial trends were being closely studied in the financial district.

The magazine "Steel" found that the immediate market for steel remains greatly depressed and that the outlook is obscured by uncertainties as to how quickly consumers can absorb the abnormal stocks accumulated last month. It estimated operations were stepped up to 30 per cent of capacity last week from 22 per cent the week before on the rebound from the July Fourth curtailment.

Spotyt conditions were noted in buisness reports from various sections of the country. On the whole, though, retail trade was described as having been maintained near the Spring levels.

The Rubber Manufacturers' Association reported June rubber consumption in the United States was 6.4 per cent less than in May and 20.7 per cent under June, 1933.

Foregin exchanges moved narrowly. The British pound opened off one-eighth of a cent at $5.04. French francs were unchanged at 6.60cents.

MARKET VIEWS OF BROKERS

J. S. Bache & Co.—A decidedly good undertone has recently developed which last week became more clearly evident. While the surrounding situation is doubtless still too mixed to induce a sustained upward movement out of the current trading range, it is our impression that such a development is only a question of time. More immediately, a flat session or a moderate setback today may well precede further improvement in the next few days, possibly to about the June average highs.

Hornblower & Weeks—There is an old adage in Wall Street which appears particularly pertinent at this time. "A market that won't go down, must go up."

President Names New Power Board

Washington, July 16 (INS)—Predicting the federal government's eventual control of interstate electricity, President Roosevelt today set up a new unit to study the question of power development and unification, and means of so cheapening electricity rates so power and light will be within the means of all.

The personnel of the new agency, known as the National Power Policy Committee, includes: Secretary of the Interior Ickes, chairman; Dr Elwood Mead, Bureau of Reclamation; Frank R. McNinch, Federal Power Commission; Morris L. Cooke, PWA Mississippi Valley Commission, and Major General Edward M. Markham, chief of army engineers.

Grains Mixed in Chicago Trading

Chicago, July 16 (INS)—Grain futures were irregular today. Wheat was ⅛ to ⅛c off, corn ⅛c down to ¼c up and oats unchanged to ⅛c higher.

Wheat: new; Sept., 98¼-⅝; Dec. 100-100½. Old; Sept. 98 ¼-⅜; Dec. 100 ⅜-⅜. Corn: July 60; Sept. 61-61¼; Dec. 62 ½-¼. Oats: New; Sept. 45 ¼-⅜; Dec. 46 ⅞-¾. Old; Sept. 45 ¼1⅜; Dec. 46 ⅞.

Crude Rubber Lower

New York, July 16 (AP)—Crude rubber futures were barely steady, 12-20 lower. July 14.40b; Sept. 14.70-73; Oct. 14.83; Dec. 15.07-12.

Outlook for Steel Remains Obscure

New York, July 16—While steel works operations in all districts recovered last week to a national average of 30 per cent from 22 per cent in week of July 4, the immediate market for steel remains greatly depressed, and the outlook is obscured by uncertainties as t ohow quickly consumers can absorb the abnormal stocks they accumulated in June, states the magazine Steel.

Steel makers look chiefly to the automobile industry to supply the first and strongest propellant to overcome the midsummer inertia. July and August automobile production is expected to be seasonably strong, mainly because manufacturers plan to make in these months substantially all the cars they believe will be required for the remainder of the year.

This will enable them to get an early start in retooling in preparation for 1935 models, thereby avoiding the delay such as characteized the beginning of thel 1934 models. Poduction last week increased to 65,000 cars, more than double the preceding week.

Steel works operations last week increased 47 points to 93 per cent at Detroit, 6 to 61 per cent in New England, 4 to 22½ per cent in eastern Pennsylvania, 3 to 31 per cent in Chicago, 6 to 21 per cent in Pittsburgh, 2½ to 20 per cent in Birmingham, from 0 to 21 per cent in Buffalo, 15 to 41 per cent in Cleveland, 6 to 30 per cent in Wheeling and 15 to 30 per cent in Youngstown.

Steel's iron and steel price composite stands at $31.23 and the finished steel composite at $54.10.

Bell Telephone of Pennsylvania

In a message accompanying dividend checks President Staples of Bell Telephone Co. of Pennsylvania and Diamond State Telephone Co. says: "The first half-year of 1934 shows distinct improvement in volume over 1933. There were gained 6230 telephones, compared with losses of 60,672 the first six months of 1933.

"At the moment there is a seasonal slump, rather exceeding expectation; it is believed, however, it will not be sustained and progress should be resumed in early autumn. Local call usage compares very favorably with a year ago, and substantial gains in toll call usage are holding up most fratifying.

"Gross telephone revenues for first half as well as net available for preferred and common stock dividends show improvement over 1933. Progress is slow, but generally in the right direction."

Boston Metropolitan District Bonds

Boston Metropolitan District is inviting sealed proposals for $1,581,000 bonds of the District, bids to be opened July 23 at noon. Bonds will be dated August 1, 1934, and will mature serially 1935 to 1959, both inclusive, except that a bidder may specify all bonds scheduled to mature in the years 1949-1959, inclusive, shall instead mature in 1949. Interest rates may be any of the following: 2½ per cent, 2¾ per cent, 3 per cent, 3¼ per cent or 3½ per cent. No rate shall be specified to apply to less than all the maturities.

The bonds are being issued by the District to provide funds for purchase of an equal amount of Boston Elevated Railway bonds, which company as a $1,581,000 maturity on August 1, 1934.

Stores' Collections Higher

Washington, July 16—Accounts receivable of department stores during the first five months of this year were paid at a higher rate than in the corresponding period of 1933, the Department of Commerce announced. May collection percentages showed an increase over April, of 43.6 per cent on open accounts and 17.5 per cent on installment accounts, against 41.6 per cent and 17.3 per cent respectively in preceding month.

Data on retail collection conditions is based on the credit operations of a representative group of 400 department stores reporting open accounts and 250 stores reporting installment accounts, Commerce officials said.

Distillers Co., Ltd., Report Issued

London, July 16—Pamphlet eport of Distillers Co., Ltd., for fiscal year ended May 15, 1934, shows profit of £2,140,622 after providing for depreciation, income taxes and debenture interest, against £1,24,127 in preceding fiscal year.

Net profit after appropriation of £250,000 for reserve fund and £100,000 for super-annuation and provident fund was £1,790,622, against net profit of £1,474,127 after deduction of £250,000 for reserve fund in previous year.

B. E. Levy Made Coty Chairman

New York, July 16—Benjamin E. Levy has been elected chairman of the board of directors of Coty, Inc. Francois Coty remains president. The board of the French Coty Company, subsidiary of Coty, Inc., has been reorganized, with a representative of Lazard Freres on the board.

Richfield Oil Notices Issued

Los Angeles, July 16—Bonds and claims of Richfield Oil and Pan-American Petroleum companies will be accepted up to the close of business on July 28, it was stated by the Richfield reorganization committee. Notices to tis effect have been sent to depositorities.

Scovill Manufacturing Co. Schedule

Hartford, July 16—Due to periodical decline in business, several departments of Scovill Manufacturing Co. will go on a 25-hour week schedule immediately. At present 5189 are employed, against 4697 a year ago.

June Rail Reports Are to Make 'Poor Reading'

The forthcoming June railroad earnings reports are expected to make "poor reading," according to officials of the roads who have been attending the meeting here where it was decided to seek higher rates to offset increased costs.

Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway is expected to show increased gross for June, but the road's expenses are being increased for reasons beyond the management's control, with a resultant adverse effect on net.

Chesapeake & Ohio Railway just about covered its common dividend for June. C. & O. common pays $2.80 annually. The June estimate represents a decrease from the surplus after charges of $2,422,316 for June, 1933.

Carl Gray, president of Union Pacific System, said he expected the U. P. to show a small increase over 1933 in gross revenues for June and that while final figures on June net operating income were not yet available, he thought they would reflect the increase in gross. He added that July had got off to a poor start. Not only is the U. P. affected by drought in the grain-growing states east of the Rocky Mountains, but in the territory west of the Rockies, where there is a good crop, no grain is moving on account of the longshoremen's strike.

L. W. Baldwin, trustee of Missouri Pacific, said that June for that road showed increases in both gross and net over a year ago, but that July was slipping. He expects the crop in his territory to be better than a year ago.

Norfolk & Western's earnings for June are likely to be lower than in 1933 for both gross and net. Loadings so far in July have been below a year ago, partly because of the drop in the coal movement which followed the increase in bituminous prices on July 1.

A. C. Needles, president of the Norfolk & Western, believes that in times like these it is a good policy to maintain a good cash position. The Norfolk & Western has about $22,000,000 in government bonds and around $19,000,000 in municipals. This is after selling some municipals when the market for this class of security became strong lately.

BOND MARKET MOVES LOWER

By International News Service

New York, July 16—Unsettlement in the stock market combined with apprehension over the West Coast labor situation had an adverse influence on the bond market today.

Second grade and more speculative railroad liens were under pressure during the early trading. St. Paul adjustments lost ½ point to 11¼. Chicago & North Western ¼s at 36¼. Rock Island convertibles ⅛ at 10⅛.

Prime investment liens were generally firm around their best levels of the year. Consolidated Gas 5s were up ⅛ at 105⅛, and Standard Oil of N. J. were unchanged at 106.

Heavy profit taking came into the German loans induced by Saturday's sharp rally and the German 5½s lost 1½ points at 37⅛.

United States governments were somewhat irregular. Federal Farm Mortgage 3¼s lost 2-32 at 102.15, and the Home Owners Loan 3s an equal amount at 100.30. Home Owners Loan 4s were unchanged at 101.6.

Liverpool Cotton Prices Are Higher

Liverpool, July 16 (INS)—There was a limited demand for spots on the Liverpool cotton market today. Prices were steady and receipts totaled 2,000 bales, none of which was American.

Futures were unchanged to 2 points above opening quotations while 3 to 6 points above due prices. July at 6.92D; October 6.83D; January 6.77D; and March 6.79D.

Berlin Announces Accord With Paris

Berlin, July 16 (AP)—Agreement with France on general principles of Franco-German trade was announced semi-officially today as having been reached over the week-end. The announcement said the state of negotiations justified expectation of a mutually satisfactory accord, to include servicing the Dawes and Young issues.

CURB MARKET IRREGULAR

By International News Service

New York, July 16—Apprehension over the turn of events on the west coast where a general strike was due to start this morning, was reflected on the curb market in the form of irregularly low prices.

Utilities as a group ruled lower with Electric Bond & Share off ⅛ at 14⅛. Cities Service was unchanged as was Niagara Hudson at 5⅝ and United Light & Power at 2⅝.

BOSTON STOCKS ARE MIXED

Mixed trend prevailed in today's dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange with narrow price changes ruling. Boston Elevated was a shade above its last closing [illegible]. American Telephone showed a fractional [illegible] was down a minor fraction.

New Haven and Pennsylvania were steady in the carrier group, both issues selling unchanged from last closing prices. American Woolen preferred was down a minor fraction.

Cotton Higher in New York Market

New York, July 16 (AP)—Cotton futures firm, 15 to 21 points advance on active commission house buying owing to continued dry weather in Texas and on higher Liverpool cables. July 12.98; Oct. 13.18; Dec. 13.34; Jan. 13.40; Mch. 13.48; May 13.54.

Wall Street Has Air Taxi

New York, July 16 (AP)—A group of Wall Streeters flew to work today, inaugurating a summer commutation service. Carrying six passengers the seaplane flew from Oyster Bay, Long Island, to the foot of Wall street in 19 minutes.

Bar Silver Steady

London, July 16 (AP)—Bar silver steady and unchanged.

Investment Trust Profits by Changes

During the June quarter State Street Investment Corp. sold many thousand share of stock, taking profits and shifting into certain other securities. Its portfolio on June 30 carried stocks with market value of $17,399,312, compared with $24,466,996 on March 31, a decline of $7,067,684, while cash increased from $1,223,542 to $7,054,542 to $7,054,822, or by $5,831,380.

Net gain from sales of securities in the second quarter was $591,367. On June 30 the excess of market value over cost of securities was only $15,487, indicating the trust had only a small net amount of profits it still could take; on March 31 the corresponding excess was $601,919 (excluding $2,232,125 reserve, since restored to surplus account), making the decrease in excess market valuation $586,432 during the June quarter.

Net worth of the rust's 373,075 shares stood at $64.72 on June 30, compared with net worth of $69.90 for 357,503 shares on March 31.

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA
LAWRENCE SHAW
National Director
TODAY'S PILOTS OF MODELS—TOMORROW'S MODEL PILOTS

By L. F. ROSS
Boston Wing Commander

We're off on a new contest, Junior Birdmen, a contest that will bring two members each week a one dollar bill for submitting the best aviation jokes. This is the Funnybone contest and it's sure to have your enthusiatic response right from the start.

We're looking for the best jokes on aviation ever printed, heard or conceived, and each week we're going to give away two one dollar bills to the two Junior Birdmen or Junior Birdwomen who submit them. The rules provide that you can can think them up yourself, or jot down what somebody else tells you, or copy them from a newspaper or magazine. We don't care how you get them as long as you send them in.

Annette Harris

Join this contest immediately and see if you can win a little extra money for your vacation activity or with which to buy some materials for a model plane.

There are lots of good aviation jokes. There are others that aren't funny at all. We are looking for the best ones and we expect members of this organization to send in the ones that bring the most laughs.

So, get busy, Junior Birdmen. Send in all the jokes you can and the two best ones each week will be rewarded with two one dollar bills. The winners will be announced each Saturday and the jokes will be printed in this column of the Boston American.

We'll keep up the contest as long as you send in good jokes. Here are the rules:

1—Any member of the Junior Birdmen is eligible to submit entries in the Funnybone Contest.

2—In submitting your joke, write your name, address and membership number on each peice of paper.

3—Only jokes pertaining to aviation will be accepted.

4—Where the same joke is submitted by more than one member, the member first sending it in will be credited.

5—A one dollar bill will be sent to each of the two members whose entries are published each week in the Junior Birdmen column.

7—All entries for each week must be postmarked not later than Wednesday. No entries will be returned and the decision of the judges will be final.

8—Send all entries to Junior Birdmen, Boston American Wing, 100 Summer street, Boston Mass.

If you are not a Junior Birdman and want to enter this contest, then join the organization immediately by filling in the application blank near this column. You'll receive a pair of gold wings or of silver wings, depending on your age, and then you'll be eligible in all the many interesting and fascinating contests and activities for members of this aviation group.

Squadron News From Here and There

SQUADRON NO. 24

John Bianchi, 16, of 428 Shrewsbury street, Worcester, reports that the 24th Squadron commanded by Emidio De Lollis held its first meeting on July 7 and chose for their name the "Flying Falcons."

SQUADRON NO. 17

Squadron No. 17 commanded by Jean Hill, 14, of 113 Merrimac street, Newburyport (one of the motto contest winners) is an all-girl squadron and so have chosen the appropriate name of "Amelia Earhart Squadron." At this meeting, letters received by Jean from Amelia Earhart and Ruth Nichols were read.

This group has conceived the idea of transmitting the date of their meeting by code. This code is now in process of forming. At their next meeting each girl is going to tell a story concerning aviation.

A sea captain friend of Jean's has fitted their charter to a beautiful hand-made frame.

Questions and Answers Box

Philip Vaccaro, 12, of 179 Princeton street, East Boston, wishes us to extend an invitation to all boys and girls living near him to join a squadron which he is forming.

George Gregory, 58 Mott street, New Bedford—We undoubtedly will have some activities which will fall on Sunday, but as a week day is more convenient for the majority of Junior Birdmen, we must plan accordingly.

Morton Rabinow, 47 Almont street, Mattapan—No announcement from headquarters has yet been made concerning flying scale and solid scale models, but in all probability, you will find announcement of this sort in the column soon.

Air Dictionary List No. 27

Here is the 27th list of air dictionary terms. It contains some mighty important definitions, but, for that matter, they are all important.

Dynamic stability—That property of an aircraft which causes it to return to its original state of equilibrium when the steady flight is disturbed.

Edge (trailing)—The rear edge of surface.

Elevator — A movable surface that is part of the tail unit (usually hinged to the stabilizer) which controls the up and down movements of the craft.

Emergency flotation gear—A device attached to a land plane to provide buoyancy in case of an emergency landing on water.

Empennage—A French term used to refer to the complete tail unit of a plane.

The next list will appear in a few days. Have we missed up on any? If so, let us know. We will publish an addenda of terms left out after the entire dictionary is completed.

We hope you are taking advantage of the fact that the trophy and medals won by Torrey L. Capo, of Quincy, and other winners of the New England Model Plane Derby held July 7th at Franklin Park are now on display in the street floor window of Brine's sports goods store at Devonshire and Summer streets. Take a good look. You may win some just like these in the near future.

Happy Landings!

Tune Slowly for Europe

Kate Smith Is Radio Bill Feature

By N. F. T.

Professionally as well as physically, Katherine Elizabeth Smith is indeed a big attraction. Kate, as loudspeaker patrons know the portly songstress, returns to the air waves this evening, her first "mike" effort of any consequence in seven months.

Program planners have set aside about as advantageous a time schedule as they have, opening the 8 to 8:15 quarter hour (WNAC) for a Monday, Thursday and Friday coast to coast network turn by the buxom broadcasting star.

Aside from anticipation that attends the re-establishment of Kate as a regular radio personality, it is interesting to note that her "When the Moon Comes Over the Mountain" theme song will not be included in her repertoire. However, the soothing strains of that selection are not being entirely abandoned.

Kate Smith

Those who listen will hear four or five notes of the famous "moon melody" used as an opening fanfare by the orchestra, which by the way is to be under the direction of Jack Miller, for many years her piano accompanist.

There's a brand new and indefinite bit due to be substituted as her musical identification, or theme song as they say.

All of which is seemingly the application of showmanship, that indefinable something by which our great American celebrities are elevated to high places and sumptuous salaries, plus talent of course.

IRISH IMPRESSION

These celebrated Princess Pat Players take to Old Erin this evening (WBZ) to present "Reasonable Doubt" as a 9:30 dramatic dial treat. Advance word indicates the play deals powerfully with Irish pride, Irish sentiment, Irish contrariness and Irish love.

Frank (Bring 'Em Back Alive) Buck steps into the studio shoes of "Amos 'n' Andy" tonight (WBZ) come 7:45. While Frank is by all means a famous fellow, he certainly has a big broadcasting order on his hands following those two topnotchers. Any entertainer on earth would find it so.

Buck himself realizes his position, promising the pick of his wild animal stories with which to carry out the five-night-a-week feature spot.

Arthur Fieldler wields the baton over 53 Boston Symphony orchestra musicians tonight (WNAC) at 8:30, entering upon the first in a series of Esplanade concerts originating in the acoustic shell on the banks of the Charles. The classic half hour gets underway with the well known "March" from Wagner's stirring old "Tannhauser" opera.

Best Bets Tonight

7:30 P. M.—WEEI—One more "After Dinner Revue" quarter-hour of musical variety.

8:00 P. M.—WNAC—Return to Network Duty of Kate Smith, the Swanee Singer.

8:30 P. M.—WEEI—Song specialty time with Lawrence Tibbett.

9:00 P. M.—WNAC—Regular weekly Evan Evans song recital.

10:00 P. M.—WEEI—Gene Arnold narrator during Musical Lullaby Lady Half Hour.

BOYS TIE GIRLS IN X-9 GAME

The boy members of the Secret Agent X-9 Club now have evened the score with girl members, with two boys and two girls having identified Bulldog Drummond's secretary during the four days this game has been going on.

Robert Infantina, 13, of 125 Chelsea street, East Boston, Secret Agent No. 4064, captured the elusive secretary on the fourth day, Saturday, at Tremont and Boylston streets, in front of the Hotel Touraine, and Robert won the daily $5 award.

Other Secret Agents have the same opportunity today at noon between 12:30 and 12:45 when Bulldog Drummond's secretary will again stroll, this time in the vicinity of the Jordan Marsh Co., store, Avon and Washington streets.

Any Secret Agent who recognizes him has merely to step up, flash his badge and card, while tapping him on the shoulder, and then say clearly:

"You are the Bulldog Drummond of the Boston Evening American."

If you are first and correct and you "operate correctly, you win $5 in cash, and remember, only X-9 members are eligible to compete in this game which is in connection with the showing of the new mystery romance, "Bulldog Drummond Strikes Back," now showing at Loew's State Theater.

Now here are your clues: A young man, five feet 10 inches in height, weighing 140 pounds and of light complexion. Cover Jordan's.

You Hear Him on the Radio

Fabien Sevitzky . . . who is a wrestling fan . . . Just like Arthur Fiedler . . . But who yet has no wrestler as a pal . . . Unlike Arthur Fiedler.

An unusual character . . . This dynamic and colorful conductor . . . Who was born in Russia . . . Served in the Russian army during the war . . . Cherishes his marksmanship trophies . . . Which have given him little fame . . . Almost above his achievements in music . . . Which have brought him much.

Sevitzky heads the People's symphony Orchestra . . . And announced his own Yankee Network series last winter . . . After giving the moguls fits . . . Because he never arrives more than five minutes early.

Won a gold medal . . . For prowess on the double bass . . . At the Petrograd Conservatory . . . But left Russia during the Revolution . . . Taking his valuable instrument to Warsaw . . . And came to America in 1923 . . . Joining the Philadelphia Orchestra . . . Realizing his life ambition . . . Two years later . . . By forming a Chamber String Simfonietta . . . In Philadelphia . . . To familiarize the public with literature for string orchestras.

Became an American citizen in 1928 . . . And a Bostonian in 1931 . . . As conductor of the Metropolitan Theater . . . But still conducts the Philadelphia Simfonietta . . . And has made Victor records with that organization . . . Finding time also to tour Europe . . . For two consecutive seasons . . . As guest conductor of the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra . . . The Paris Symphony . . . The Pasdeloup Orchestra of Paris . . . Vienna Symphony Orchestra . . . And Warsaw Philharmonic.

FABIEN SEVITZKY

In Boston . . . Organized the Sevitzky Vocal Ensemble and Young Musicians' Orchestra . . . Which he is now rehearsing . . . For an outdoor performance of Cavalleria Rusticana.

Is five feet ten . . . Weighs 146 . . . Has a weakness for pencils . . . And for neckties . . . Of which he has several hundred . . . And he is fond of fishing and shooting . . . And likes the theater . . . And the creepy 13 . . . But hates anything slow.

Fair Fans Cheer Kane's Ball Team

Officials and employes of the Kane Furniture Co. and their families enjoyed an outing at Pemberton yesterday. One of the features of the day's program was a baseball game between two picked teams. Claire Keegan with a megaphone is shown leading some of the fair rooters in cheers for their team. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer).

3 Bids and Proposals

PROPOSAL

THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
DEPARTMENT OF MENTAL DISEASES

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Sealed separate proposals for Erection, Plumbing, Heating and Ventilating and Electric Wiring of an Infirmary Building at the Walter E. Fernald State School, Waverley, Mass., will be received by the Department of Mental Diseases at Room 109, State House, Boston, until 2 o'clock, P. M., daylight saving time, Tuesday, July 31, 1934, and at that time and place will be publicly opened and read. Bids must be made upon the Department's prescribed special form of contract for projects financed and constructed under the terms of the National Industrial Recovery Act and Chapter 365 of the Acts of 1933, to which is attached and made a part thereof The Special Contract Provisions Revised April 15, 1934, of the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works and the State Emergency Public Works Commisison. Special attention of bidders is called to the prescribed minimum wage rates of $1.20 per hour for skilled labor and $.50 per hour for unskilled labor, and to the special provision as to semi-skilled labor.

Pursuant to Executive Order 6646, dated March 14, 1934, no bid will be considered unless it includes or is accompanied by a certificate (worded in accordance with P. W. A. 61 revised March 19, 1934) duly executed by the bidder.

All bidders shall be required to file with their bids a properly executed certificate of workmen's compensation insurance issued by a company satisfactory to the State Commissioner of Insurance.

Plans, specifications and contract forms may be obtained at Room 315, Ford Building, 15 Ashburton Place, Boston, Mass., upon deposit of amounts as follows: Erection, $175; Plumbing, $70; Heating and Ventilating, $125; Electric Wiring, $45. Make checks payable to the Department of Mental Diseases. These amounts are to be included in the estimates and all checks but those of the successful bidders will be returned upon return of the plans and specifications. Plans and specifications may be seen at the office of the architect, Clarence P. Hoyt, 344 Boylston Street, Boston. Those for heating and ventilating may be seen at the office of the engineers, Albert B. Franklin, Inc., 38 Chauncy Street, Boston.

Bids must be accompanied by properly certified checks on, or certificates of deposit issued by, a responsible bank or trust company in amounts as follows: Erection, $5000; Plumbing, $1000; Heating and Ventilating, $1000; Electric Wiring, $500; made payable to the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. Checks will be returned after execution of the contract upon demand. A surety bond by an approved surety company will be required from the successful bidder in an amount not less than the full amount of the contract. The right is reserved to reject any or all proposals, or to accept any proposal deemed best for the Commonwealth, and no award can be made without the approval of the State Engineer, P. W. A. and of the State Emergency Public Works Commission.

The local registration office of the National Reemployment Service, from which employee lists for this contract shall be obtained (as required in Article C of the Special Contract Provisions) is Massachusetts State Employment Service, corner Church and School Streets, Waltham.

Paid Propagandists' Activities an Affront to American People

WHAT PRICE PROPAGANDA? AND—WHY?

What justification can be urged for the belief, so prevalent in Europe, that American public opinion is like so much unclaimed and unoccupied land, open to any squatter that sees fit to settle on it?

That the thought of the nation, its deductions from known facts, its reactions to foreign policies, whether governmental or commercial, even its feelings towards alien peoples and personalities—can be captured, manipulated, directed and controlled by the cheap and transparent devices which are the stock in trade of the paid propagandist?

And what are these paid propagandists?

We have it from the lips of one of them that they are "public relation counselors." Publicity agents—is a designation which they also accept as a proper descriptive.

And yet, publicity seems the last thing in the world these specialists in publicity desire.

Their expedients are employed in a secretive, covered way, as if they were aware of some impropriety about them and felt that they must be hidden.

Payments in cash, not by check; a contract nominally with a tourist bureau but understood to have been so made only as a matter of record, to conceal the fact that the real party was the German ministry of propaganda; bookkeeping entries attributing receipts to sources now conceded not to have been the true sources from which payment proceeded,—such are the expedients to which propaganda feels obliged to stoop.

It was testified that the Nazi consul general in New York was making a series of payments, amounting to $500 monthly, to one of these caretakers of American public opinion.

THE climax of the revelations thus far was the disclosure that the firm of which Ivy L. Lee is the head, has been receiving $25,000 a year from the German dye trust—not for supplying information or guidance for the selling of dyes in the American market—but for supplying advice on questions of re-armament, the public debts of Germany, and other matters of national policy for the guidance of the German government.

This specialist in public relations even proposed to bring the President of the United States into the field of his professional activities.

Among several samples, exhibited to the committee, of the advice and information sent to its German clients by the Lee firm, one suggested that Joachim von Ribbentrop, the German armaments commissioner, visit the United States with a view to explaining Germany's position to President Roosevelt, and while here, that he address the Foreign Policy Association and the Council on Foreign Relations.

It was further proposed that Herr von Ribbentrop should undertake a definite campaign to clarify the American mind on the disarmament question and that Von Papen, the present German Vice-Chancellor, should make a similar effort with reference to the Saar Valley, still under French occupation.

How infinitely silly,—and yet what an intolerable affront to the American people!

Of all the people in the world, the Americans are probably served by the MOST INFORMATIVE AND RELIABLE PRESS and are the best able to reach correct and reliable judgments upon events that are worthy of their attention.

IF the Germans—and for that matter, the English and the French also—are solicitous for the good opinion of the people of the United States, all they have to do is to conduct themselves in a manner deserving of such opinion.

If a nation sees fit to trample upon freedom and to deny its citizens the individual liberties which, in the American view, are essential to self-respect, such a nation is bound to suffer in the regard and good opinion of Americans.

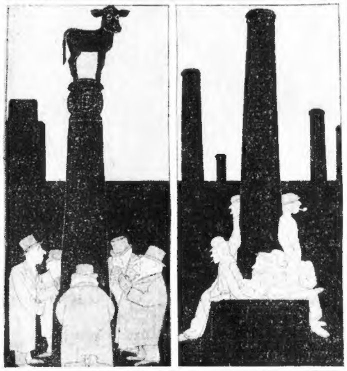
If a nation—bound to us by every obligation of gratitude for timely and vital aid in preserving its national existence—sees fit to repudiate its debts and flout the obligations of gratitude, it is bound to forfeit not only the confidence, but the good opinion and the sympathy of the people of the United States.

WHAT EARTHLY THING CAN PROPAGANDA DO TO AVERT THESE RESULTS?

ABSOLUTELY NOTHING! No matter how much cash is furtively slipped by gullible Europeans to the thrifty gentlemen among our population who practice the profession of public relations."

As Germany Sees Us

Unfortunately, Both Calf and Gold Are Missing



BEHOLD AMERICAN BUSINESS, WORSHIPPING THE GOLDEN CALF

AMERICAN LABOR OUT OF WORK, CHIMNEYS COLD, FACTORIES CLOSED

This picture shows how we look to Germany and others in Europe. It is taken from the German Simplicissimus.

On the left, American business, not quite as happy as it used to be, is seen worshipping the golden calf, perched on a high monument. On the right, American workers, once the busiest, most highly paid on earth, are sitting, idle and discouraged, around a cold chimney, no fire in the furnace, no work in the factory.

Unfortunately, there is only too much truth in the right hand side of the picture. Thousands of chimneys ARE "cold," thousands of factories are shut, and at least ten million men are idle.

But the left hand side of the picture is far from accurate. The lovely golden calf CAN'T be worshipped, for he is no longer with us. There is no gold, except a big lump locked up in Washington, and you may not have a speck of it. Men that had their tens of millions, and even hundreds of millions, stored away in Government bonds, and imagined that those bonds represented gold, now know, to their sorrow, that they represent only a good grade of yellow paper, with an excellent signature, that of Uncle Sam.

President Roosevelt has at least abolished the long-established "worship of the golden calf," for he has taken away the gold, and the calf has gone with it.

Perhaps both will come back. The world never changes suddenly, at least not for long.

Trade Index Points Up

Definite evidence of business improvement is given by figures just issued by Director Harold P. Smith of the Boston offices of the U. S. Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

These figures show retail sales in Massachusetts for the past month were nine per cent greater than in the like period of 1933.

The data, collected from 766 retail firms, are encouraging. The measurement is made in dollar sales, and refutes the idea, entertained in pessimistic quarters, that business has been "getting worse."

New Deal Goes Wordy

The New Deal is making a New Language.

Proceeding from the A B C stage of NRA and its alphabetical progeny, Washington has reached the word-manufacturing stage. "Sanitize," for example, means putting sanity and sanitation in business. "Ultracodex" means to exceed a Code Authority.

War's Danger Postponed -:- By James T. Williams, Jr.

Whatever danger there was of war in Europe has probably been postponed five years by the course of recent events in Germany.

This is the belief expressed in reports to the State, War and Navy Departments since the executions without trial in Germany opened the eyes of the world to the fact that Germany today is a house divided against itself.

GERMANS NEEDED AT HOME

Because of the division the belief is held that domestic problems will immobilize the Germans on the home front for the next five years and lessen by so much the probability of war between Germany and France, with the repercussions which the renewal of that historic feud would threaten.

Evidently this is the point of view of the English government. It has turned from Berlin to Paris in its diplomatic maneuvers, and Sir John Simon, the British minister of foreign affairs, appears again to be working for closer relations with France.

This is no new experience for Sir John. He seems always to have preferred to promote an Anglo-French entente to improving relations between London and Berlin or doing anytaing constructive to promote Anglo-American relations.

This is no new game for British diplomats of the Sir John Simon school. It is an old game at which they have long shown themselves to be most adept. Their search is always for a powerful European ally. Had the German people shown increasing solidarity at home they might have expected increasing attention from British diplomacy. But the break-up of the Germans at home and the probability that home troubles will increasingly occupy the attention of whatever German government can survive the storm, has been quickly followed by a series of conversations between British and French officials, and the cunning hand of Sir John Simon seems to be steering British diplomacy toward a closer working agreement with France and her allies.

It is the same old story of the balance of power. Europe has not been changed by the League of Nations or the League Court or any of the other branches of "the evil things with a holy name." European politics after the war does not differ greatly from European politics before the war. It is a play on the part of the great powers for position, a striving on the part of each to maintain an advantageous balance of power, based on secret agreements and understandings and supported by armed force.

ALL EYES ON GERMANY

European diplomacy today is running its traditional course and that course only serves to emphasize the wisdom of the American people in refusing to ratify the treaty of Versailles' or to enter the League of Nations either by the front door of the League Covenant or the back door of the League Court.

The only disarmament in which the dominant powers of Europe are really interested in today is disarmament of Germany by force and of the United States by intrigue.

The great war disarmed Germany and the European powers by their diplomatic triumphs over American diplomats at international conferences have succeeded in fooling Congress into reducing the national defense of the United States until our navy is third and our army seventeenth in rank.

President Roosevelt began his administration by prevailing on the Congress to begin the upbuilding of our navy to equality with the strongest. Immediately the European effort for a new conference was revived. The main purpose of the London exchanges about the navy appears to be to find some way of halting the upbuilding of the American navy.

CONFERENCE SHATTERED

Meantime, the Geneva conference on land armaments has broken down. It has broken down because the only disarmament in which that conference is interested in is keeping Germany disarmed and in keeping the national defense forces of the United States below strength and both these things have been done.

How long the Roosevelt administration will be willing to continue its participation in the farcical proceedings at Geneva or the treaty conversations at London only time will tell. What is certain, however, is that if President Roosevelt should tomorrow send a cablegram to Geneva calling home the American delegation and another to London recalling Mr. Norman Davis, he would tremendously gratify a majoirty of the American people. This majority is opposed to submitting to any more European sapping expeditions our national defense camouflaged as "world disarmament."

This majority holds with George Washington, that "to be prepared for war is one of the most effectual means of preserving peace," and that to keep out of all entangling political alliances is the only road to American security.

Human Side of the News; Wilhelmina Mourning

By Edwin C. Hill

The kindly gentleman who was prince consort of the Queen of the Netherlands has got done with life and taken himself out of it almost as inconspicuously as he lived.

He was a German born, a Mecklenburger, one of the small princelings who, in the days when the king business was a going concern, were called to hold down so many thrones in Europe, in Rumania, in Greece, in Bulgaria.

Prince Henry managed to keep his throne under him, no mean feat in these days, and managed, too, to capture the affections of the Dutch people.

And now Wilhelmina, at the age of 53, is left alone to mourn, like Victoria, and to endow her departed husband with almost saintly virtues. And, like Victoria, an excellent ruler of her people, sound and sane and keeping well within the national constitution. Her job is no little one, even though Holland is a little country.

MOTHER OF COLONIES

The Netherlands—Holland—is such a small corner of Europe that we are apt to overlook the fact that little Holland, like little England, is the motherland of great colonies clear around the curve of the earth.

The importance of the Dutch Colonial Empire—Java, Borneo, Sumatra, Celebes and hundreds of smaller islands in the Far Eastern seas—and the Dutch West Indies — Surinam, on the north coast of South America and the rich island of Curacao—was thoroughly recognized by the Washington Conference.

It was Surinam, or Dutch Guiana, by the way, that England traded to Holland, in sixteen sixty-seven for the Province of New York. One of the few bad real estate deals that John Bull ever made. It is this great colonial domain, mostly in the East Indies, that makes Wilhelmina one of the world's richest women, with an immense income of five million dollars a year.

She was only a little girl of ten, with molasses candy hair and china blue eyes –the last of the House of Orange-Nassau, when her father, William the Third went the way of kings and common men.

A remarkably pretty little Dutch doll, amiable and intelligent, the world was flooded with her pictures in those days. And the piquant and attractive little girl-queen developed into an able and serious ruler, very much like the late Queen Victoria in many ways.

She knows thoroughly the nature of the problem she must solve daily. She speaks German, French, Italian and English, as well as her native Dutch. She keeps the ablest counsellors at her side—but she never signs a blank check. She wants to know.

LOVES THE OUTDOORS

Of simple, healthy tastes, she loves the outdoors. Her people see her skating on the Zuyder, bicycling along the neat, clean-swept streets, or trudging along a country road—with cavalrymen riding at a discreet distance.

Training her daughter, Juliana, for affairs of state has been her chief concern. Juliana will be the next queen of The Netherlands. Will she be the next queen of England as well, consort of the present Prince of Wales? Some people think so.

Europe, it appears, has dragged its coat of mail from the dark corner and is polishing it right out in the clear for all to see. Disarmament is at a discount. Alliances are being formed, as of old, with general staffs making their plans for thrusts and counter thrusts.

The collapse of the Geneva conference, England's determination to increase her land, sea and air forces, the trip of France's Foreign Minister Barthou to the countries of the Little Entente, the Mussolini-Hitler conference—all show the way the wind is blowing.

The past 14 years of effort for peace and security by understanding seem to have come to naught, and Europe returns to the principle that he is most secure who has the most bayonets.

CHANGE FOR ENGLAND

Most significant is England's departure from the MacDonald-Henderson-Cecil policy of conciliation and conference. The Socialist-Liberal school has had a long inning, and now the hard-headed Tory school takes a turn at bat. Something not on the surface may have forced the hand of England, perhaps the conviction that Germany is re-arming on a great scale.

Again, it may have been only the conviction that England's safety is better guaranteed by a policy of "peace by alliance" rather than "peace by persuasion."

In any event, England decides for re-armament and a renewal of the alliance with France as it was before the World War.

Maxine Weygand flies to England and talks to the King and Viscount Hailsham, British minister of war. The first soldier of Europe and perhaps of the world is the short, stocky Weygand, inspector general of the French army, of whom it is said that "Foch will not die while Weygand lives."

From the First Battle of the Marne until the great marshal's death, he was the inseparable companion and trusted adviser of Foch, whose dying wish was that the security of his country be left in the hands of Weygand.

So it has. And it is to Weygand that England first unfolds its armament plans and its military program in the event of British intervention in a war on the continent.

In the meantime, another elderly Frenchman, Louis Barthou, a bearded scholar of 72, has been making the rounds of Eastern Europe pouring cement into France's alliances with Rumania, Jugo Slavia and Czechoslovakia.

For France, he guarantees the boundaries of Rumania, and he pronounces a benediction on the stand of the Little Entente to fight the return of a Hapsburg to power.

SIMON OUTSPOKEN

It was the same Barthou only a few weeks before who told Sir John Simon at the Geneva Conference: "At my age I did not come here to talk twaddle." His categorical refusal to subscribe to any treaty which would permit Germany to re-arm put that conference on the rocks.

In the whole picture of conjecture and uncertainty only one thing appears certain. That is that the United States is going to foot the bill for these arms commitments in the form of the monies due her on war debts and even some private debts.
